A shattered wreck, tottering on the verge of the last brink, arose in his place from the midst of other unfortunates in the police court this morning, and proclaimed to the world that he is a confirmed dope fiend.

"I don't care," he whined, half-defiantly. "I know that I use 'cokes,' and I don't care who else knows it. That isn't all; I use morphine, too."

"I've just got to have the stuff, judge," he whimpered. "I can't live without it. If I can't get it I suffer the torments of the damned."

The prisoner was Daniel Benton, "Dopey Dan," in the parlance of the police and underworld vernacular. Not yet 30 years old, he has gone almost into the disarray of a petty criminal.

But mostly he steals and pilfers. He has no sense of shame when the craving for the narcotics rushes with the burning fever through his veins. Time and again he has been taken in custody by the police for sneaking a pair of shoes, bed clothing or any other article within reach with which to get more of the dope which has sapped almost the last shreds of vitality from his system.

But "Dopey Dan" is not all bad. His weakness for narcotics has made him what he is. But he appears to have a deep and abiding affection for his mother, reckoned by the estimate which he has of himself. He approaches that he is practically a home-less case, but he refuses to afflict himself upon his aged parent.

What I am, so I do not stay at home," he declared. "I don't want to be a bother and a burden to my mother."

When "Dopey Dan" was arraigned he was charged with the theft of some comforters and pillow cases from the Sixth avenue hotel, alleged to have been stolen by him last February. He was arrested at that time but made his escape through a hole in the floor of the hotel when it was being remodeled. He admitted today that he had taken the bedding. Asked why he had taken it, he said that he was intending to make a visit to his home in Superior and wanted to give his mother a present.

He got sixty days in the county jail when he entered his plea of guilty. A quantity of a "catarrh cure" was found in his pocket when he was arrested last night. The police state that it is nothing but cocaine masquerading under another and more innocent name. Having the stuff in one's possession is a violation of the ordinance and no action was taken on that charge.

Fred S. Johnson, secretary to Chief Troyer, who is at St. Luke's hospital suffering from pneumonia, is reported to be steadily improving. It is hoped that he will be able to resume his duties within less than two weeks.

Con Scanlon was arrested in Duluth yesterday on a charge of being drunk. He says that he was in Minneapolis and doesn't remember the incident.

"Con" recently attained some notoriety when he was accused of violating the white slave statutes by demanding money from his wife, an inmate of a St. Paul asylum. When the police reported that "Con" had called up his former wife by long distance and had demanded money under threat of doing her bodily harm, "Con" denied that he had done such a thing. He will go to court on Tuesday in the county jail.

Herbert Brown and Ed and Leon Cavanaugh, West Duluthians, were arrested last evening in a Bowery saloon on charges of being drunk and disorderly. Brown pleaded guilty this morning and was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail. The other two were held for Monday afternoon for disposition and bail in each case was fixed at $15. The trio came in from the woods early in the evening. It is claimed that one of the brothers refused to go to court.

Patrolman Yanvick was summoned and he was unable to do anything with him. When he placed Cavanaugh under arrest the policeman claims that the three of them attacked him. Help arrived and all of them were sent to headquarters. Four policemen responding to the call saw the trio, which was sent out by others in the saloon.

Matt Engels was arraigned in police court this morning on a warrant charging him with having assaulted Delia Rensaa in Gus Egdahl's saloon on or about Sept. 2. He waived examination and was bound over to await the action of the next grand jury. The case is another chapter of the recent suit which was prosecuted by Rensaa's wife against Egdahl in district court, recovering a verdict of over $7,000. Engels is alleged to be the man who attacked Rensaa, injuring her so that he lost the sight of his one good eye, leaving him blind. He was arrested in Minneapolis.

Plumbers repairing a gas leak are said to have started a fire which damaged the roller rink of N. O. Sundby at 1328 East Sixth street to the extent of about $300 yesterday afternoon. One plumber is said to have been singed slightly by the flames. The blaze did not put the rink out of commission.

A lamp explosion set fire to a hamper of clothes in the kitchen of C. P. Plummer's residence at 2325 West Third street yesterday afternoon, doing about $25 damage. The blaze was quenched by the fire department. No one was injured.

FARM SCHOOL ON WHEELS

Agricultural Special to Run
Through County April 17 to 26.

"The Home, the School and the Farm," Theme of Talks.

The agricultural special, a yearly educational feature for St. Louis county, will be conducted again this year, running ten days, beginning April 17.

Beginning three years ago with the modest potato special, the yearly spring educational train through St. Louis county has become of greater importance each year and this year it will be greater than ever in features and in the appeal to the farming communities.

The train will be in charge of the extension division of the agricultural college and every branch of farm instruction will be in charge of an expert from the division.

There will be a poultry car, with live flocks for demonstration purposes. There will be a car demonstrating the uses of the boys and girls on the farm. Another car will appeal especially to the women of the county, and will be devoted to the education of the men, and livestock will be carried on demonstrations in connection with talks on dairying and stock raising. The vegetable exhibits will include every product that can profitably be raised in this section of the country.

Prof. N. E. Chapman, head of the poultry work of the extension department, has been in Duluth several days in connection with W. A. Dickinson, agricultural superintendent of the county, and Fred Ward, county agricultural agent, who has completed the arrangements for the tour. The railroads have agreed to co-operate again and the equipment for the trip will be the best available.

The Home, the School and the Farm, will be the theme of the talks on the agricultural train. Arrangements will be made for the closing of the schools at each community on the visit of the train, for many features will be provided for the children. The farmers will be urged to bring their wives and families to the train, and the women's car will appeal to the women of the farms.

Fred Ward, the county agricultural agent, will accompany the train to meet the farmers in his territory. R. E. Griffin, secretary of the St. Louis County Fair association, will make the tour and urge the farmers to take greater interest in the fair this year. A. A. Young, county superintendent of schools, will travel on the train and get in touch with the school children. The agricultural college will send the best instructors at its command, as the results obtained by the train in previous years justify special efforts this year.

The train will first travel over the Duluth and Iron Range railroad, stopping at all farming communities. It will go up on the Canadian Northern to Chisholm, and then on to the Canadian Pacific, and the train will visit Brookston, Western Mesaba range will be covered and the train will visit Carlton county. The detailed schedule will be worked out later.

WILL THE COUNCIL HAVE QUORUM?

Employees of City Are Now
Worrying About the Payroll.

Will enough aldermen attend the council meeting Monday night to constitute a quorum?

That's a serious question with city employees, for a very material reason. For if there isn't a quorum they may not be able to draw a payroll on Wednesday.

For in the usual course of business the council would pass the monthly payroll next Monday night, and all those who have arrearages coming from the municipality would be able to collect them the Wednesday following. City Clerk C. B. Palmer states that under the new charter a three-fifths vote is required to pass the payroll, which means that at least ten of the sixteen aldermen will have to be present to transact the business.

Monday night is the night before election. Eight of the present aldermen are candidates for the new commission which will be elected next Tuesday. Very naturally they will desire to have their fences in the best possible shape and they will feel that they can get more votes lined up elsewhere than in the council chamber of the city hall. Wherefore, there is more than an even chance that the employees of the city may be compelled to wait until a week from Wednesday to gather their individual shares of the "root of all evil."

Little business of importance is expected for transaction at the Monday night meeting. What is done will be of a routine nature. The council is on its last legs, the meeting of Monday being next to the last which that body will hold. The swan songs will be sung a week from Monday and the new commission will take the reins at the end of the week.

NEXT WEEK IS CANNED FOODS WEEK

MARCH 31st to APRIL 6th

The Cannery, Wholesalers and Retail Grocers throughout the United States will make next week the most notable in the history of food distribution. All next week will witness a "Sale" that will be nation-wide—a national movement to make the people acquainted with the purity, wholesomeness and excellence of CANNED FOODS.

The purpose of this great demonstration is to show you that there is economy, safety and convenience in the use of Canned Foods. There will be window displays, exhibitions and demonstrations of Canned Foods by grocers, jobbers and manufacturers in every city and town, and millions of women from millions of homes will learn the truth about the products of the modern canning industry—one of the greatest industries in the world and possibly the most important.

Every housewife in this city should take advantage of this great opportunity to become familiar with the world's finest low-cost foods. If you knew how pure—how healthful—how inexpensive are the canned foods of today, you would buy them more freely. Fresh from the garden and the orchard, Canned Foods come to you with all their natural flavor. New scientific methods—modern, sanitary canneries—wonderful machinery—the most rigid pure food laws the world has ever devised, combined with honest purposes and high ideals on the part of the modern canner—all these have produced for you and your family canned foods that are safe, pure and economical.

BUY CANNED FOODS NEXT WEEK!

MARION HARLAND, AMERICA'S FOREMOST AUTHORITY ON DOMESTIC SCIENCE SAYS: "I HAD WRITTEN FOR PERHAPS TEN YEARS WARNING AMERICAN WOMEN AGAINST CANNED FOODS. I SAID PUT THEM UP AT HOME OR GO WITHOUT THEM. I BEG THEM NOW TO USE CANNED FOODS."

DR. HARVEY W. WILEY, WORLD-FAMOUS FOOD EXPERT, SAYS:

"The canned food industry, more especially that portion of it represented by the National association, has been foremost among the food industries in its endeavor to improve the output by the selection of good material, by sanitary factory methods, improvement of the quality of the container and the abolition of the use of preservatives. For seasons of natural shortage, for periods, places and times when fresh goods are not available, canned foods fill a most important place in the modern dietary, and the wholesomeness, palatability and convenience of the products are in most instances unquestionable, and under modern conditions of life they are filling a larger and larger need."

This is an age of specialization. We used to spin and weave our own clothes. Now we let the woolen mill do the work. Why not LET THE CANNER preserve our food?

BRIGADIER GENERAL HENRY G. SHARPE, HEAD OF THE COMMISSARY DEPARTMENT OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY, SAYS:

"These canned goods were essential to the subsistence of the troops in the Philippines, who were scattered through the islands and subjected to insanitary conditions and surroundings. But the general health of the army there, especially during cholera and plague epidemics, when canned foods were principally used, was primarily due to the variety and wholesomeness of the canned foods supplied; which shows that the army may depend upon canned foods under all conditions of service without fear that the health or physical powers of the troops will suffer."

Make it a special point next week to visit your grocery store. Look over the wonderfully complete stock of Canned Foods. You will be surprised to learn of the great number of items in the list of foods in cans. Try some of the varieties of fruits and vegetables that you never before thought of buying in cans. Go shopping for Canned Foods next week! You will be delighted with your experience. You will solve some of your housekeeping problems in a way that never occurred to you. Ask for prices on Canned Foods by the case and by the dozen.

ALL TEN MAY BE PRESENT OF ORATORY

Eight Candidates Have Already Promised to Attend Meeting.

Fay Calls Off His Meeting to Go to the Armory.

At least eight, and possibly ten, candidates for mayor will appear on the platform at Dr. Day's free-for-all for majority candidates at the Armory tonight.

The meeting will be the feature of the windup of the campaign. Each candidate will be given a certain time in which to present his case to the voters, and those attending will have an opportunity to analyze the position of the different candidates.

W. I. Prince, W. E. McEwen, Harry Nesbitt, Morris Kaplan, Marcus L. Fay, M. B. Cullum and P. E. Dowling have assured Dr. Day that they will be present. W. B. Getchell and Bernard Silberstein have other engagements, but they will get to the Armory later if they can possibly do so.

Mr. Fay called off a meeting he had scheduled at the Auditorium in order that he might be at the Armory and that there might be no nearby counter attraction. Mr. McEwen is to speak at the Polish hall, Fourth avenue east and Fourth street, but he will get to the Armory after his talk there.

The candidates have all shown the spirit Dr. Day urged on them in arranging the meeting. He contends that the voters are confused as to the position of the candidates for mayor and such a meeting, with all candidates participating, will serve to clear the atmosphere greatly.

Mr. Prince will wind up his campaign Monday night with two speeches, one at the Columbia hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, and the other at the Armory, Central avenue and Ramsey street, West Duluth.

P. E. Dowling will close his campaign with a speech at the Lakeside town hall Monday night. W. E. McEwen will speak at the Armory in connection with speakers representing the Municipal Ownership league. Other candidates have not announced their speaking plans for the closing night of the campaign.

than he thinks he will when under the spell of the patriots he heard last night. He is a pretty hard headed, sensible old fellow in the long run, apt to get things nearly correct and give practical horse sense more weight than academic theory. With a good charter, which we have, and such men, representing the best ideas of the largest number there is every prospect that Duluth will get down to business and progress as it deserves; but just now it is to laugh and the old guard are taking it out in reminiscences and "don'ts" that put you in mind of when Zeke and John stole the ballot box at the First precinct. And kidnapping the colored club to Superior till after election, I am not on any committee. Yours truly, Duluth, March 29.

PUTTING BILLY WISE
Brother-to-Brother Letters
By Johnny Wise.
Dear Bill: How I wish you were here! Oh, how I wish you were here! Believe your truthful little brother, Billy, when I whisper into your capacious ear that you are missing the time of your long and eventful life. Participation in this municipal campaign would be to you as the waters of youth to a decrepit octogenarian with one wooden leg and the other one in the grave.
My prediction last week came true. I observed that the candidates were approaching the voters and would swing them in also. It has, Bill, it has. I never saw such a confused, confused, confused lot of ordinarily staid, steady and stolid citizens in my life, and I have seen some political excitement.
The Stirrup club report started it. To some eighteen or twenty aspirants for the honor of serving on the first commission, always remembering that $4,000 per annum goes with said honor, the Stirrup club report was a club without any stuffing. Each of the eighteen or twenty or thereabouts immediately hiked to a yard where they kept cordwood in long sticks. Each provided himself with a large and weighty club, plentifully endowed with knobby surfaces, and went out after the members of the Stirrup club has been constant, continuous and consistent since the candidates had time to provide themselves with the weapons of political warfare.
The week has been a merry one. William's night large gobs of political oratory have been turned loose on every street appeared phantom forms that stepped along silently have been waylaid and forced to listen to soft-toned political argument. Every day on the streets, in the cigar stores, in the restaurants, in the offices and in certain other business places on which well-intentioned politicians designs political talk flowed unrestrained.
Duluth has been stirred up (no pun) over elections before, but never as it from the wives and mothers of the nation. Even the children talk politics as they troop home from school, and the man of the house cannot have peace at his own dinner table.

All over Wednesday, the votes will be counted and the successful ones will smile broad smiles and watch the papers for notices of contests.
Whose going to be elected? Ask Ramsey the First if you can discover his shade circling around in space anywhere. There's nobody on this earth can tell. The man who makes the books has been changing his odds every few hours during the week, and no man who places a bet can tell whether he could get a better bet the next day.
Some people, poor guileless souls, thought that when commission government was adopted, all politics would flee from the county. They thought the enlightened electorate would go to the polls and calmly and dispassionately choose five true and tried men to guide the destinies of the city. They thought there would be a kind of "class conscious working class candidates" were elected next Tuesday. Duluth would still be doing business as an up-to-date, high-class, modern municipality two years from now and five years from now.
The commission can be only an instrument of the people. It must carry out the people's will, or "Bingo! The Recall." Till the chance of the mission government being a big improvement on the old government, no matter which way the election goes, take a tip from your little brother, and if anybody who has more, chase him up a back alley, and crack him for a nut. Yours,
JOHNNY.

BOOST FOR DULUTH

We are taught that self-preservation is the first law of nature. It is perfectly natural that one should preserve and protect his home, but how many realize that every dollar out of town to the merchant or manufacturer in the larger cities is, so to speak, "a shingle taken off his own roof?" The merchant, the farmer and the individual citizen are all dependent upon each other.

Buying From Foreign Concerns a Menace to Your Own Home!

Every time you fail in allegiance to home industries you strike a blow against your own permanent success. As the home merchant and manufacturer enlarge their business and plant just so surely does the city extend greater chances for success and growth to all its citizens. If on no higher grounds than that of self-preservation, let us all pull together for the success of all Duluth firms.

News of the Week at the Central High School

THE HIGH SCHOOL COMMERCIAL CLUB.

The Commercial Club of the Central high school was organized last semester by Prof. F. B. Carey, head of the commercial department, and since its inception, has enjoyed a flourishing existence. The club is the result of Prof. Carey's appreciation of the possibilities of an organization devoted to the welfare of the commercial students. The purpose of the club is primarily to inculcate in the students an active interest in the commercial course.

Meetings of the members are held at regular intervals, when commercial problems of the day are discussed. Several practical talks by business men have been given during the term, and Mr. Carey plans to accompany the club members on some observation trips in the near future.

Membership in the club is limited to seniors who are enrolled in the commercial course, although Prof. Carey plans to effect a change next year, to admit the third-year students. Ray Jacobson is president of the society. "Tell me what you eat, and I will tell you what you are," was the opening sentence of an enthusiastic address by Dr. John L. Alexander, to which the students were treated during the chapter period yesterday. Dr. Alexander has an international reputation and is known as probably the greatest authority on boys' work in North America. He gave an exceedingly forceful talk into which he introduced slight humorous sketches and touches of pathos.

He said in part: "What you are now, so will you be in ten years. The food, mental food with which you feed your mind is the determining factor in your life ten years hence. Success in after life depends upon the attitude displayed toward the work in the high school, for to solve the big problems of tomorrow, you must solve the little ones today." The address was favorably commented upon by the teachers and was a topic for discussion in many of the classrooms.

The orator to represent the Central high school in the Wallace Cup contest, which will be held in the high school assembly hall about the middle of May, will be chosen Monday morning in chapel when the final contest will be held.

Those who appear in this contest are the four winners in the class contests held during the past month. The freshmen will be represented by Jacob Garon, the sophomores by Albert Armstrong, the juniors by Phillip Altman and the senior class by Lawrence Dow. The final contest to determine the school declaimer will probably be held during the Friday morning chapel period.

The regular monthly meeting of the senior class was held in the assembly hall at the close of school Monday. Their Waskat was chosen chairman of the committee to take charge of the class night exercises. Mildred Miller and Kenneth Harris were elected to head the committee for the senior revival dance. The fourth year students also voted to award jerseys to the class hockey team which won the interclass championship. William Ellder was elected to captain the senior indoor baseball team. President Fay Giddings announced the appointment of representatives in the various senior session rooms to make a canvass of the students and find out how many commencement invitations are to be ordered.

The presentation of jersey sweaters to the members of the junior basketball team occurred in chapel Wednesday morning. The sweaters were awarded to the third year students for their having won first place in the interclass basketball ball league, winning the prize given by the Kelley Hardware company. This is the first time that the representatives of the class of 1914 have finished better than third in the league race, so the juniors feel justly elated over the record of this year's team. The interclass league, during the past season was one of the most successful ever held, which fact speaks well for the new aggressive policy in athletics adopted at Central this year. The following juniors were awarded jerseys and class numerals: Walter Lawrence, Chauncey Larsen, Albert Gonska, Charles Whiteside, Ferdinando Collatz and Sigurd Duclet.

Following the presentation of the jerseys to the juniors came much discussion as to which class was really entitled to the school championship. This reached a culmination Friday morning when the senior class presented a written challenge to the lower class for a final deciding game to settle the much-mooted matter. The seniors base their challenge on the fact that the senior team did not fully represent the class inasmuch as three of the first team men were barred from participation in the interclass games because they already had won their prize. Whether or not this contest will be played is a matter of some doubt because of the advent of warm weather, but should it become a reality the fans will probably see one of the fastest class games played in the annals of the school, as the teams are evenly matched and intense rivalry exists between them.

Much interest is being evinced by the student body in regard to the coming indoor baseball game between the seniors and the seniors of the school. There is no little rivalry between the two factions and the contest promises to be "the" event of the season. Rumors coming from an authoritative source are to the effect that the instructors have met several times of late for the purpose of perfecting some inspiring yells to be perpetrated in the course of the game. The seniors have the advantage of an early start in that they have been holding regular practices during the week, but the pedagogues are confident to the extent that having beaten the strong senior team two years ago they anticipate an easy victory over their less experienced opponents.

The Stump, the society for the development of the various phases of public speaking, is filling a long felt want in the school. The club has achieved success under the direction of Prof. K. G. Olsen and the membership now numbers thirty active. All the members are enthusiastic about their work and the society is rapidly becoming a force in the life of the school. The next meeting of the club will be Thursday, at which time the members will be given some instructions in parliamentary procedure in the presenting of bills and listing bills on the calendar. President Jessa Cohen will preside at the session.

He asked for $1,600 damages.

TAXATION IS HIS THEME

McEwen Dwells on Importance of Revaluing Vacant Property.

Defends Members of the Municipal Ownership League.

W. B. McEwen, candidate for mayor, went thoroughly into the question of taxation in two speeches last evening, one at the Park Point mission and the other at Moose hall, 224 West First street.

"The undervaluation of unimproved outlying land, which makes it easy for the owners to keep it off of the market, is holding Duluth back," said Mr. McEwen. "Our system of valuation has put a premium on speculation and an unjust burden on improvement. Land held for speculative purposes at $1,000 an acre is valued for purposes of taxation at $7.50 an acre. The home of the working man, because it is an improved section of the city, is valued at one-half of its true value for purposes of taxation."

"I do not believe any man or any property should be compelled to assume an unjust burden of taxation. However, I do believe that the burden should be distributed equally. The home owner should certainly not be penalized for his improvements, while the large land owner, holding his lands for speculation, contributes less than his share towards the maintenance of the government of the city on whose progress he depends for his speculative returns."

"If we were to assess those outlying lands at the same proportion of their true value as we assess the improved property of the city, we would not only relieve the burden on the improved property, but we could more easily raise more money for the affairs of our municipal government and of our schools. A careful, scientific, equitable revaluation of the city's real estate is one of the greatest needs of Duluth at this time."

Mr. McEwen defended the prominent members of the Municipal Ownership League who have been accused of themselves to attack by their activity in this campaign. He said that those men performed an incalculable service for the city in their fight for the municipal ownership of the water plant, and that they are now serving the city well in their efforts to bring the electric lighting system under municipal ownership and eliminate the Duluth-Bidson company from politics.

Mr. McEwen spoke on the welfare board, and said that the work outlined by it should be initiated at the earliest possible moment. "The commissioner of public affairs must give his personal attention to the welfare work," he said. "It should not be a thing apart from the government, but an integral part of the government. The first duty of government is to promote the happiness of the people, and that is the province of the welfare movement."

"I believe that the work farm, social center work and other activities planned by the welfare board should be given greater impetus after the commission takes hold. Whether the board is of public affairs should take a personal part in its work. If he has sympathy and understanding, he will be able to do much to further the movement."

Mr. McEwen will speak this evening at the Polish hall, Fourth avenue east and Fourth street, and at the next evening at the Moose hall, 224 West First street.

CITY OWNERSHIP IS MORAL ISSUE

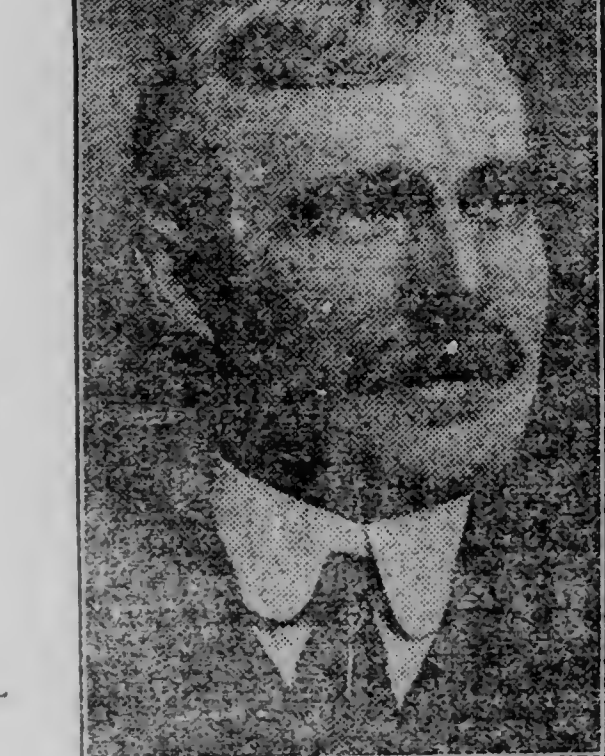

Dr. Day Says Corrupting Influence Must Be Removed.

Municipal ownership is a moral as well as an economic issue, according to D. H. Day, candidate for mayor, who spoke at the Dornedey hall in West Duluth last evening.

"The government of American cities is notoriously bad, and any one who has made any study of municipal government knows it," he said.

government in this country knows that one of the principal reasons for that condition is the corrupting influence of the public utility corporations on the city's public servants," he said.

"Municipal ownership thus becomes a moral as well as an economic issue. It removes a tremendous influence for evil from coming in contact with our public officials. As our old friend, Henry Truelsen, so often said: 'When you do not tempt our public servants, they do not fall.'"

"Many an honest business man has gone into the city council with a determination to serve the people faithfully and well. But when he finds that he had to either serve some public utility or suffer loss and damage to his private business, he has fallen a prey to the power of the corporation."

"And the pitiful part of it all is that once the public utility corporation gets him, the brevities, the special privilege gamblers and the rest of the vice trust soon get a grip on him too, and in spite of his efforts to serve the people who elected him to represent them, he finds himself doing the bidding of those interests that control him."

"This, then, is why it is so necessary to elect a man as mayor or your city whom you know to be free from any possibility of being controlled by the public utility corporations, and of selecting your commissioners with the same care."

"Such men will bring about municipal ownership of the electric lighting plant, and thus remove one of the great obstacles to efficient city government."

Socialist Meetings.

At Oneonta hall at West Duluth last evening P. C. Phillips, candidate for the long term, addressing a large crowd of voters, told of his work in the council, especially in regard to the resolution to acquire the street railway.

It would, he said, require indefatigable champions of municipal ownership to fight this issue to a successful conclusion. All public utilities should be operated, not to profit the few, but to serve the many.

At the Armory meeting Sunday afternoon, Max Holder, who acted as campaign manager for the Socialist candidates, will preside. Two meetings will be held Sunday evening—a Polish meeting at Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue east and Superior street, and a Jewish meeting at Foresters' hall, 325 West First street.

The city council meeting will take place at Tivoli hall, 435 Lake avenue south.

cities in the Wabash and White River valleys, while the flood crest, sweeping down toward the Ohio, is spreading wide destruction in the southern valleys of the rivers and along the Ohio.

Terror increased at Evansville, Vincennes and all the small townings along the lower Wabash with each hour as the swollen waters of the Wabash and White rivers in Indiana swell the crest of the lower river. If loss of life occurred, it would not be for lack of warning as the people, fearing repetitions of the horrors in Central Indiana are spreading warning of the flood's approach throughout the great valley that is threatened.

Trainsmen Missing.

A work train on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern went through a trestle at Blue Culvert, two miles west of Washington last night. Four trainmen are missing and are believed to have been drowned.

Relief work in Peru, West Indianapolis and Brookville, the worst points of the flood's attack, is progressing rapidly. Sixteen bodies have been recovered in Brookville, twenty are known to be in Peru, but search of all of West Indianapolis thus far has failed to establish any drownings. Several small fires in West Indianapolis last night destroyed or damaged a number of homes, as companies failing to get any water from the city mains. Indianapolis street car service is rapidly becoming normal, but it will be several days before a pure water supply can be furnished.

Refugees in Indiana are receiving ample provisions and Governor Harrison will investigate the needs of all flood sufferers. Three companies of state militia have been ordered to floodport to assist in the relief work and West Indianapolis, under strict quarantine, is being cleaned and made sanitary safe for the return of the refugees.

word from Cincinnati today that he expected to reach Dayton late this afternoon. It was reported that the Federal government would take control of Dayton both from a military and sanitation standpoint. Adjt.-Gen. Wood said he had heard of no such plan and that he did not believe it would be put into effect.

Digging bodies out of the mud was the chief work of rescuing parties today. The water had drained off from almost all of the flooded area, leaving thick layers of mud. In some instances the mud piled up by the eddies, was several feet deep. It soon began to dry up in portions of the streets exposed to the sunshine, but for blocks the searchers for bodies waded through a sea of oozy mud.

A brilliant sunshine threw an uncanny light over the distorted scenes in the areas where the homes of 75,000 people were swept away or toppled over. A view down almost any street revealed among the debris, household utensils and dead horses brushed together in indescribable confusion. At two points the bodies of horses were seen still caught in the tops of trees where they had been swept.

Outside the north side Dayton View, where a relief station was established in the Longfellow school house, thousands of homeless people gathered there for supplies of food and clothing. Every able-bodied man pressed into service. A man with a megaphone stood at the door calling out orders.

At least thirty people were killed when the Leonard building collapsed Wednesday night, according to the statement of Detective Kincaid today. Kincaid was marooned by the flood in the city hall just across Main street from the Leonard building. Standing in the window of police headquarters he was watching passersby on the street below prior to the coming of the torrent. He saw twenty people, he says, enter a saloon which occupied a stand to examine the interior of the ruins. More than twenty persons were rescued from the wreckage Thursday night by Edward Schaeffer, who sat astride of the collapsed building, holding on to a carrying a rope. About twenty people were trapped in the wreckage. Schaeffer fastened the rope around one after another and then the men were pulled out of the building pulled the men to safety.

Estimates of Dead Vary.

Dayton, Ohio, March 28.—Dayton awakes this morning wondering if the earliest estimate of the number of its dead as a result of the flood was accurate. With eighty-two bodies recovered and with nearly every section explored by life saving crews and newspaper men, early estimates of tremendous loss of life have been out to 150 to 200.

After a meeting of seven-eighths of the undertakers of Dayton last night, it was announced that a consensus of opinion at the meeting was that 200 were dead. These men said they based their estimates merely upon the general conditions and Dayton citizens today renewed efforts to explore every recess of the city to ascertain if their reckoning was correct.

As most of the hemmed-in sufferers had been provided with food yesterday no effort was made to work in the flooded area last night, but with the two large boats of the city, the men were out to succor the sufferers and recover the dead.

Another Serious Situation.

Not knowing yet how great is her loss in number of lives Dayton already faces a serious situation. The sewerage, water and wire communication systems have been destroyed. Thousands of dead animals are lying about the streets and the filthier firms began today to gather up the animals.

Water is being served from private plants of the Soldiers' Home and the National Cash Register company, being from sprinkling wagons. The relief committee has sent out an urgent appeal to people not to dump refuse in the streets but to dig cess pools wherever possible. The sewerage system cannot be used for weeks and it will be necessary to do without gas for some time.

Little Sickens.

Considering the number of persons affected by the flood, there has been comparatively little sickness, the cold weather being responsible for this to a great extent. The cold weather has caused great suffering among those marooned without food, water or heat, but in the end it has proved a blessing. Efforts were made today to clear away debris in sections where the flood water has run off and it was feared bodies might be found in these masses of debris. With well organized crews doing this work, others took food to persons still marooned in Riverdale and North Dayton. It was believed, however, that by nightfall most of these people could get out, so rapidly was the water receding.

Trainloads of food came from several directions today. Train communication being established with the north, several relief trains came in, bearing varied assortments of needed materials.

NEW TUNE FOR AN OLD HYMN

At the Sunday school convention last evening Dr. Gebel composed a beautiful tune for the familiar hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

The tune was named "Locker," after the general secretary of the convention, Dr. H. H. Locker, who put down the notes as given to him and Dr. Gebel then sang the hymn to the new tune, after which the audience joined with him in the melody.

against overturning the committee report. "I had hoped," he said, "that when this house spent an entire afternoon debating tonnage tax and then disposed of it, that that decided the question for this session, yet there are three more bills pending of which, this is the first. If the bill goes on general orders another half day at least will have to be taken up in debating it and the same is true of the other two yet to come. This will be pure waste of time, as it is impossible at this date to get these bills through the senate, even if they pass the house, for the tonnage tax bill; it was beaten and the house has had enough of it for this session."

Representative Lennon said there was no use wasting further time. Representative Dwyer of Minneapolis thought the bill ought to be considered, but the Frankson motion was voted down, 37 for and 50 against, and the committee report was then adopted.

Representative Lennon moved to reconsider the vote by which the vote was killed and asked that his motion be taken up, which was done. This prevents its being taken up again.

Two Other Bills.

The tax committee will take up on Monday afternoon the other two bills, both of which are constitutional amendments legalizing tonnage taxes and other similar forms of specific tax-

IN THE INTERESTS OF JUSTICE.

A great and important step in the interests of justice has been made by the state supreme court by the changes it has inaugurated in its rules, to become effective the first of next month. The necessity of having certified copies made of records in cases appealed to that tribunal has laid an unnecessary expense on litigants, and this feature is now to be done away with by the transmission of the original records to the supreme court, to be returned to the lower court after the final decision is rendered.

But even more important than this is the elimination of the rules that have been responsible for delays in determining issues. There will hereafter be less of "the law's delay," and this is a great gain for the cause of justice.

Another exceedingly important step is the abandonment of the rule that provided for an adverse decision in case a respondent failed to take action on an appeal. Hereafter the court will decide such cases more nearly on their merits, instead of basing decisions on the invitation to prejudice extended by failure of a litigant to take such action.

Our courts are gradually coming to regard their duty as that of deciding cases and governing procedure according to justice rather than according to stereotyped rules laid down generations ago. The Minnesota supreme court, by its revision of its rules, has put itself well up in the list of judicial bodies recognizing that men and principles are superior to mouldy precedents.

"Speaking of our boasted civilization," says the Chicago News, "the militia has to be ordered out every time there is a great disaster." Such pessimism is to be explained only by the fact that the paragraph was written before the deadlock at Springfield was broken.

ANSWERS THE NAVY BOOSTERS.

In a pamphlet on "Naval Waste," issued by the World Peace foundation, Dr. David Starr Jordan presents some convincing arguments against the proposal to increase the size of the American navy. He shows the fallacy of the main arguments presented by the big navy advocates, bares some of the motives for such a campaign that are not given publicity by the men who are conducting it, and thoroughly riddles the much-vaunted "sixty-seven reasons for a strong navy."

To begin with, Dr. Jordan fails to find sufficient basis for increasing our navy in a consideration of "the naval programs and military strength of possible opponents." He maintains that we first need definite information as to who these opponents are, and that there must also be consideration of international relations, the real or assigned causes of military extension in other nations, and of the financial resources from which each nation must draw its military exactions. At the head of all the resources that make war possible or likely he places a supply of money, and he points out that other nations that need funds are compelled to come to this country to raise them. Is it likely, he asks in effect, that this nation or its people will supply funds to others to make war on us?

He insists, also, that in comparing the strength of powers there must be consideration of the cost of maintaining that strength, and he shows that while the United States is now third in battleship equipment, it is second in the amount of money it is spending on that equipment. In 1911 England spent $203,000,000 in keeping up its navy, Germany spent $115,000,000 and the United States spent $121,000,000. Dr. Jordan adds:

"The United States navy is one of the most costly institutions ever projected. Its yearly expenses exceed the endowment revenue of all the universities of the world—the foundations of intellectual advancement. They exceed the cost of maintenance of all industrial and technical schools of all grades, including all colleges of engineering and agriculture—the foundation of the world's industrial advancement."

Coming to the declaration that "the navy is our main defense," Dr. Jordan asks, "Defense against whom?" and he adds that "the United States has not an enemy in the world. There is apparently not a rival nation which could fight us if it could, or would fight us if it could. We are surrounded by peace, which cannot be broken except by ourselves." And he points out our position in the world's commerce as sufficient reason why no nation would rashly cut itself off from American supplies.

The extent of our coastline seems to Dr. Jordan but poor basis for naval expansion. He points out that our coastline is nearly forty times as long as Germany's, and that on that basis we should have a navy forty times as strong as that of the German empire, an idea that kills itself by its own fallacy. He shows how the weakness of nations has proved to be rather in their military atmosphere or lack of public interest in public affairs than in failure to support big armies and navies.

Replying to the theory that "battleships are cheaper than battles," Dr. Jordan suggests: "Say, also, 'Revolvers are cheaper than tombs.'"

And so on through the arguments for naval expansion. The actual motives for such a policy he sums up under three heads, the first of which only is advanced publicly by naval power exponents. The three are: (1) caution or fear; (2) business demands, and (3) love of display. He shows how the business demands are those of manufacturers of naval supplies and similar articles, who in fact demand a market for their supplies, so they may give their employees a chance to earn wages, from which the employees may pay higher taxes for the purchase of more supplies for a yet bigger navy.

Dr. Jordan's article is interesting and convincing. It ought to be read by every man and woman who cares how the people's money is spent. And that list should include every man and woman in the country, for all will have to help pay the bills if a naval increase program should be adopted.

Illinois proposes to lend color to the general makeup of the senate by sending J. Ham there as her contribution to the decorations.

NO CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

By a formal vote, the Minnesota house of representatives has rejected the proposal for a state constitutional convention. The reasoning by which that decision was arrived at is not clear, since there was no debate on the question. It seems to have been the result of abstract psychological processes, communicated telepathically from representative to representative. Apparently, too, the conditions were adverse to sympathetic vibrations as concerned the plan, and the result was that the constitutional convention idea was sat upon. And sat upon hard.

To put it mildly, it is impossible to understand the action of the house members who voted against the bill. Probably it is due to an inordinate affection for the present Constitution—an affection that remains beautifully firm in spite of the hacked and hammered and patched and battered appearance that document presents. It has been amended and reamended and amended again. It is going to be amended some more, at the next election. And there is no assurance or likelihood that the process will stop then.

To revise the Constitution would be nothing more nor less than the application of plain common sense to the state's government. When a mathematician has reached a given stage in the solution of an intricate problem, he sets down the result up to that time and erases or lays to one side the columns of figures in the processes by which he arrived at that result. That is what we ought to do with our state government problem. We have reached a stage vastly different from that at which we started. It is time to lay aside the tables of processes, write down the result to date in plain and unified form, and take up the continuation of the problem.

The present Constitution was adopted more than half a century ago. It looks now like a crazy-quilt. Maybe the members of the house like crazy-quilts. But crazy-quilts went out of date long ago, and Minnesota ought to be given something more coherent and up-to-date than a crazy-quilt Constitution. If the question comes up again in this legislature its treatment ought to be just the reverse of what it has been. But if it doesn't come up again at this session, it will at the next session. And that will give us a chance at a new Constitution before 1920. The pity is that we are not to get one much sooner than that.

There are some possessions which men cultivate but seldom brag about. As for instance, littleness of spirit.

$75,000 IN MOLES.

Not the kind that are accounted blemishes on the human cuticle, though there might easily be that much in them for the person who could find and practice a sure and safe means of getting rid of them. But think of $75,000 being made out of the sleek little fellows that burrow under the ground and, according to some authorities, damage the roots of growing things, though other scientists say that this is more than counterbalanced by the good they do in destroying insects.

But the Dutch are waking up to the fact that there is real money in moles, and so much money that one shipper in Amsterdam cleared $75,000 last year just out of moleskins. The business of catching and skinning the little creatures has developed into an industry in that country. The farmer who works at this new line of business gets from 10 to 15 cents American money for each skin. Great quantities of these skins, says American Vice Consul D. P. De Young, writing from Amsterdam for the Consular Reports, are shipped to the United States, and are put out as substitutes for seal.

So great is the slaughter of moles becoming in Holland that there is talk of a national restriction on the business, lest the furry creatures become exterminated. Apparently the Dutchmen are much like Americans in some ways—as soon as they find a goose that lays golden eggs they proceed to work the fowl to death. But by their marketing of moleskins they have not only given the world a new supply of mighty fine fur, but have raised the humble mole to the eminence of commercial respect. And incidentally have given us a new example of the importance of cumulative little things.

By this time some folks whom we all know have got the time before the baseball season will open figured down to a matter of hours.

HELP SAVE THE PLUMAGE BIRDS.

In a circular addressed "To all Friends of the Birds," the New York Zoological society is appealing for support for its bill, to be presented at the coming tariff session of congress, prohibiting the importation into this country of "aigrettes, egret plumes or 'osprey' plumes, and the feathers, quills, heads, wings, tails, skins or parts of skins, of wild birds, either raw or manufactured, and not for scientific or educational purposes," excepting "the feathers or plumes of ostriches or the feathers of domestic fowls of any kind."

The Zoological society is doing a good work. It is entitled to all the support it can possibly get for this movement, and the women who, through ignorance or thoughtlessness, are contributing to the ruthless slaughter of the beautiful wild creatures by wearing these importations on their hats or clothing, should be among the first to join in the movement.

The society indorses unqualifiedly the stories of starving of nestlings through the slaughter of parent birds, and the reports of approaching extermination of many varieties, through the cruelty necessary to supply women with these adornments. It is time the feather trade was ordered to halt its horrible business. Australia has already passed such a law as is sought by the zoological society, and this country should be the next to join in the movement.

The society's request is reasonable and easily performed. It is that men and women individually write to their representatives in congress and to Representative Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the house committee that is framing the new tariff bills, and urge the inclusion in the law of the prohibition against the importation of these articles, the securing of which means the extermination of the most beautiful of the world's feathered creatures. The writing is little enough task, and it will help to insure that the United States takes a stand for justice and humaneness to the birds.

The addition asked should be made to the tariff law. You can help to secure it. If you do not want to take the trouble of drafting a letter to the congressmen, clip this editorial and send it to them with a statement that you indorse it.

Instead of two or three candidates campaigning like sixty, we now have sixty candidates campaigning like sixty.

JONES OUGHT TO GO.

In a spirit of bitterness, but no less one of reason, the Manila Times invites Representative Jones to visit the Philippines and see how things are there. The invitation is the answer to the congressman's bill providing that the Philippines be given their independence not later than the year 1920.

"I wish to God he'd go," was the comment of one Uncle Sam's former soldiers, not so long returned from service in the islands. "He'd soon see how unfit the people over there are for self-government in their present stage of development."

That is the one purpose for which Congressman Jones is invited to visit the Philippines, and that is the one reason why he ought to accept the invitation. There has been too much politics mixed up in Philippine questions already, but some congressmen and others would have some more of the same kind of thing injected into the matter.

It is pretty generally conceded on all sides, now, that Uncle Sam put his foot into a great big hole when he undertook to build up a just and stable government in the Philippines. Also there is a pretty general recognition of the fact that he ought to get his foot out of that hole just as soon as he reasonably can. But when it comes to specifying that he shall do so in seven years from now, it seems as if the idea of Philippine independence is in danger of breaking the speed limit.

That fact was recognized at the Democratic convention at Baltimore, when the resolutions committee rejected a declaration in favor of Philippine independence in 1920 and adopted one declaring for such independence at the earliest reasonable date. That is the better way to leave it. If the Philippines can demonstrate by 1920 that they are ready to go it alone, well and good. They should be given the opportunity. But if they are not ready for it by that time we would be wronging both the islanders and ourselves by making them shift for themselves when in a state of unpreparedness.

Before any steps are taken to throw the Philippines onto their own resources, assurance should be had that they are ready for that burden. If Congressman Jones is so anxious to have their independence accomplished, he would do well to visit the islands and get some first hand evidence as to their present fitness for independence. If such evidence exists there he could be trusted to find it. And if, as is claimed by men who know island conditions by having experienced them, it is not in the least likely that they will be ready for independence by so early a date as 1920, it is certain that Mr. Jones, if he is as fairminded as he claims to be, would find that out and would drop his present proposition.

It is desirable, every way, that the United States withdraw from the Philippines at the earliest reasonable date. But it is not desirable that we abandon the islands and their people to a condition such as exists in some of the Latin-American republics.

Oregon farmers are issuing a call for a shipment of marriageable women "in carload lots." Reports fail to state whether the carloads are to be determined by weight or by the head.

THE CHECKERBOARD.

'Tis all a checker board of nights and days,
Where Destiny, with men for pieces,
Hither and thither moves, and mates
And, one by one, back in the closet Lays.

It would almost seem that old Omar must have had a prevision of the most prominent positions in a series of modern American newspapers. The march of events as recorded there is a never-ending source of comment among readers. Events and people come into prominence and are exploited for a time, and then give place to others that rise to occupy the public mind, and in surprisingly brief time the old "stories" pass out of the thoughts of daily life and perhaps are forgotten, unless they happen to be marked by some special feature that conquers even the marvelous indifference of human memory.

If you doubt this, see if you can tell, offhand, whether the Titanic disaster occurred last year or the year before—unless, of course, you had some personal reason for remembering the event. Yet it was only one year ago the fifteenth of next month that that maritime horror was enacted, and a week of feverish excitement was ushered in for the civilized world. Think of the varied events that have caught and held public attention in the space of that year—the deaths of kings, the accomplishment of a political revolution in our own government, the Mexican crises, the exposure of corruption in New York City, the impeachment of a United States judge, numerous railroad disasters, the various incidents of the Balkan war, and other matters that wrought strongly, if temporarily, upon the minds of men.

Even so remotely as last Sunday the country was amazed and horrified by the accounts of a tornado that killed many scores of people and demolished a vast amount of property in the city of Omaha. The story was made all the more emphatic because it followed within a few hours after a similar incident in the more southern part of the country. But before the Omaha experience was old, even before the bodies of the dead were removed from the ruins of their homes, came the devastation of Dayton and other Ohio cities, and the world has had another week of horrible details to enthrall the readers of the records of current events. Omaha's story has been crowded into the background by the relentless juggernaut of time, and has been forced to yield to another its place in the thoughts of all but those most intimately concerned.

With the dawning of another week, who can tell what will be the most prominent event in the day's history? What will be the next move on the checkerboard? No one knows. There is only this of which we can be certain—that there are people like ourselves who have been less fortunate, and who need our help. Perhaps the time will come when we shall need theirs. Who knows? But whether we consider present and future so selfishly or not, the truth remains that while we have been left in reasonable comfort, there are others, perhaps at our very doors, who are not so fortunate. Their trials will pass with time, it is true. But if we can make those trials bear less heavily upon their minds and hearts, let us be up and doing, in the name of our common humanity.

Adrianople chose a mighty bad time to surrender if it cared anything about how much prominence it got on the front pages in this country.

WHOSE IS THE HOME?

The "fundamental difference" between English and American homes is declared by the Honorable Agnes Leigh, an English visitor to New York, to be that in the American home "everything caters to the woman, her sense of luxury, her love of show, while in England the establishment is carried on with a view to the comforts of the man of the house."

Perhaps the distinction could be phrased thus: "An Englishman's house is his castle, while an American's house is his wife's castle." But phrase it as you please, the declaration of the Honorable Agnes raises a knotty problem as to whom the home belongs to, and whose rights are to be paramount there.

That there is some basis for the assertion regarding American homes, whatever may be the truth or falsity of the English side of the question, cannot be denied. Nor is it a condition confined only to wealthy families. There is a feeling, more or less often expressed, that since the woman spends more time in the home than does the man, the house should be arranged according to her wishes rather than according to those of her husband, if there is any conflict of opinion on the matter.

But the words of the Honorable Agnes ought to set some women wondering how far they are carrying this home domination business. The New York Globe, albeit more or less lightly, suggests:

"The American woman who makes herself supreme in the home, thereby rendering the home a shade distasteful to her husband, is not actuated wholly by selfish motives. She has come deliberately to the conclusion that the more she is able to make her home a place where she is happier, the more she is able to make her husband's life a happier one. In the busy life of the modern woman, the home is a place where she can find a refuge from the cares of the world, and where she can find a place like this."

The ideal, of course, is a home in which the woman finds joy and comfort and the man a place of refuge and happiness. It is a serious mistake if the rights of either are forgotten or ignored by the other.

It is a common belief that the only way some men manage to get along by putting them to sleep.

If you get seriously down in the mouth, just remember that after next Tuesday you will only have to remember five names instead of sixty.

Common Errors of History

History Teacher's Magazine: One is apt to find that in the mental storehouses of many pupils lie hidden quaint and curious ideas, distorted historical truths, popular fallacies, and false beliefs which modern historical criticism has long since banished to the realms of the historical novelist, the newspaper writer, and the maker of almanacs.

To suggest a few of these old errors: The Church of England was founded by Henry VIII because the pope would not allow him to marry Anne Boleyn, a constantly. Another interesting item is that the Puritans were so much purer and better than the members of the Church of England that they were persecuted for religion.

The children of the rich plan to be ever educated in Virginia or in the other Southern colonies, and these children were sent to England and educated at home for there were no schools of any kind in the South, is a statement sincerely believed, historians to the contrary notwithstanding.

The king of England caused the Revolution because he taxed the Americans so heavily. The king, in the student's mind, laid the tax and acted in a most outrageous fashion in general. Such a body as the English parliament or the English theory of representation appear to have made no mental impression upon him.

A royal colony was always tyrannically governed and was much worse than a charter or proprietary government, the word "royal" evidently signifying the democratic mind as fundamentally wrong.

Poetic justice is also ever present as to the ultimate end of certain notable personages. Benedict Arnold and Aaron Burr always spend their last days in deepest poverty and remorse, while Columbus still persists in dying in prison and in chains. Jefferson is a peculiarly fortunate character, for the average pupil insists that he originated democracy and solemnly states that we owe our government by the people to the Sage of Monticello. He also writes the Constitution. This rather irritating falsehood is strangely common.

The Nickel's Doom. Milwaukee Sentinel: The new nickel is only half as popular as the old-fashioned dime.

A Child's Laughter. One thing yet there is, that none, Hearing ere it chime be done, Knows not well the sweetest one. Soft and strong and loud and light, Very sound of very light. Heard from morning's rosiest height, When the soul of all delight Fills a child's clear laughter.

Golden bells of welcome rolled Never forth such notes, nor told Hours so bright in times so bold, As the radiant mouth of God. Here that rings forth heaven. If the golden-crested were a man, Might be half as sweet as when Laughs a child of seven. —Swinburne.

"NO SCANDINAVIANS NEED APPLY."

To the Editor of The Herald: In last evening's Herald I noticed an advertisement for a good, steady and sober man for conductor on the incline car running up towards Proctor, and it adds that "No Scandinavians need apply." The Duluth Belt Line Railway company's representative, who is doing the hiring and firing on this "efficient" transportation line, should have a satisfactory cause for a clause of this kind. He is, no doubt, aware of the fact that at least 75 per cent of his earnings come from Scandinavians working men employed in the Proctor shops, and other passengers between West Duluth and Proctor, 60 per cent of whom are of Scandinavian descent. Let the Belt Line Railway company put this sign above the entrance on the incline car—"No Scandinavians accepted" and let us see how long they will remain in business.

"SCANDINAVIANS PREFERRED."

SOME CLIPPINGS OF CANDIDATES' PROMISES.

To the Editor of The Herald: Perhaps some of the candidates who are handing out "promises" so promiscuously will not enjoy a "recall" on their later: but "Gentle Reader" may, if clippings from The Herald be filed now for future use. And there's nothing like possession of documentary proof to keep one from being consigned to membership in the Ananias and Sapphira club.

If Boys Ruled the City

Kansas City Times: One day recently a teacher in the civil government class at the Lathrop industrial school asked each pupil what he would do if he were king of Kansas City. The pupils are all between the ages of 13 and 17. The following answers were given extemporaneously: I would close the saloons and pool halls—Sydney Peck. Improve the police force—John Burkhardt. Make a law compelling parents to care for their children—Ervin Kivett. Have a home for the aged—Ray Boone. Tear down useless buildings and put churches in their places—Edward Cowell. Enforce the cigarette law—Sherill Jones. Arrest any man who beats his wife—Isidore Hope. Have Jim Crow cars—Joe Fox. Have a place for boys to go, to keep them off the streets—Roy Aldridge. I would prohibit the selling of candy, vegetables, coal, ice and fruit on the streets—Noah Taylor. Have a municipal gas plant—John Newcomb. Furnish the board of public welfare all the money it needs for the poor—Roy Aldridge. Make Kansas City's motto: Cleanliness First, Business Second—Willie Lipha. Make a better Helping Hand—Jesse Thompson. Drive grafters out of the city—Ralph Kienstebur. Break up the gangs—Charles Navratil. Compel every one to be kind to dumb animals—Henry Hef. Establish more trade schools—Francis Hemphill. Build free Y. M. C. As.—Ersel Beyer. Lower the cost of living—Charles Tunget. Treat every one fairly—Arthur Erickson. I would make clothes cheaper—Gust Georges. Keep saloons and pool halls out of school districts and put more policemen in "Little Italy"—Patrick Curran. Put the gas company, the electric light company and the car company under the city's control—Ben Goldstein. Springs cars. See that there was no gambling in the city—Francis Hemphill. Not have a saloon or pool hall in the city and no newsboys' clubs—Carl Young. Put a ban on boxing and stop Sunday baseball—Lester Bryan. I would have free street cars and good public schools—Russell Lem. Put competent men in the judicial department of Kansas City—Glenn Krommes. Get rid of all sanitariums that are unfit for use for humanity—George Brown. Give each new baby a bank book with 50 cents and make them keep it.—G. E. Beyer.

Speaking Literally.

Judge: A famous sculptor was seated at a dinner next to a fair but frivolous young lady, and it was soon evident that he was not very favorably impressed by her idle chatter. "What kind of a figure do you most admire in a woman?" she inquired, with the air of one angling for a compliment. "Almost any kind, as long as she is not a figure of speech," he replied briefly.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Contrary Winds.

Of the disciples of the Master it is recorded that they spent one dark and stormy night on the Sea of Galilee. Starting to cross from one shore to another the little galley was caught by an opposing gale. They toiled at the oars till 3 o'clock in the morning, but could make but little headway. "For the wind was contrary." Only as the foreboding dawn appeared did the tired crew, with blistered hands and aching muscles, come into port at Genesareth.

A plain parable you have of the fight to be waged by many a life-voyager. The contrary winds of a larger sea are typified by those ancient ones in the blue waters in Palestine.

Salvors there may be who find the wind always fair. They are blown over the course by friendly Zephyrs abeam. But others, and a vast large number, advance at all, by a long, stiff beat to windward.

The opposing wind that baffles a man may be found within his own constitution. Nature may have dealt out her gifts to him in niggardly fashion. He may inherit a brain that is dull, a body that is weak, a will that is undisciplined. Some outland passion that he great-grandfather once had may have subdued manly lust in him as a beast untamed. The wind is going to be contrary through life.

Or one's surroundings may represent the fundamental opposing fact. The inescapable situation may be hostile to one's best development. Of how many a young man can you say, considering his murky environment, that if he comes up straight and true his career will rank as scarcely less than a moral miracle. Observing the atmosphere of some homes even one almost marvels at the strength of the young women in them who avoid frivolity and live by genuine rather than by artificial standards.

There are flowers on the top of some of the Swiss mountains. I have picked them there myself. But those snowy summits are not ideally suited for flower gardens. Most posies could not exist on them at all.

We learn that there were mints in Caesar's palace. But those mints were contending against head winds. The pagan place must have been a battle-ground rather than a nursery for righteous souls.

If the contrary wind is present in your life, my brother, present as a stubborn, unchangeable fact, it is a rebuff, unconquerable like it, a helpless bit of seaweed. Second, try your sails to make it serve you. The course of the ship depends after all, on the skill and courage of the captain rather than on what winds are blowing.

One ship turns east and another west With the selfsame winds that blow; 'Tis the set of the sails and not the sails Which tells us the way to go.

Like the winds of the sea are the ways fate As we voyage along through life, 'Tis the set of the soul which decides the goal And not the calm or the strife.

If that T wharf captain a few weeks ago could beat his way to Boston from the Grand Banks after the gale had left his schooner with only the stump of her rudderpost, you and I should be able to conquer such head winds as we may meet. Man was made for the mastery of circumstance. He is created to win against odds. Only as we live the overcoming life may any of us hope to reach the ultimate port of all good mariners.

JACKSON CLUB HEARS TALKS

Dowling Attacks Commercial Club for Neglect of Dayton Relief Measures.

Prince and Silberstein Advocate Business Administration for City.

Three candidates for mayor and several candidates for commissioner addressed a meeting of the Jackson Improvement club in the Jackson school, Fifth avenue east and Third street, last evening.

P. E. Dowling attacked the Commercial club for failing to take action toward the relief of the Dayton flood sufferers.

W. I. Prince made a plea for an honest, efficient, systematic business government of the city.

Howard Silberstein spoke on the use of the schools as social centers and the vocational education of children in the grades.

Mr. Dowling said that thus far Duluth has not done anything to contribute toward the relief fund being raised for the flood sufferers. The little city of Virginia has taken action, he said, and Duluth should be ashamed into action.

"There is a body in this city which should have taken the matter up," he said. "I refer to the Commercial club. That body has done nothing. The controlling element of the club is too busy trying to beat a certain candidate for mayor, meaning myself, to attend properly to representing the city in this matter. They have neglected their duty to the city and the requirements of plain respectability."

"I stand for a greater Duluth, which can properly take its place among the cities of the country and manfully meet just such issues."

W. I. Prince declared that if he is elected he will go into office with no promises, expressed or implied, to hamper him in carrying out the pledges in his platform.

"You all know what my platform is," he said. "It is my platform. I wrote it and I have published it so that the voters may know how I stand. I ask the voters to approve that platform at the polls next Tuesday, and promise them that I shall not fail them."

"I believe in Duluth. Whether I am elected or defeated, I will continue to believe in the city, just as every good citizen should. We shall all work together, regardless of politics, for the progress and prosperity of our city."

"Great problems will face the commission, but the greatest problem of all is the problem of good government, obtaining the very best government that can be obtained under a charter that has no equal anywhere. The men elected to the commission will have no excuse. They will need courage and faith. Business experience and business ability will serve them well. They will need a strong interest in the city's good."

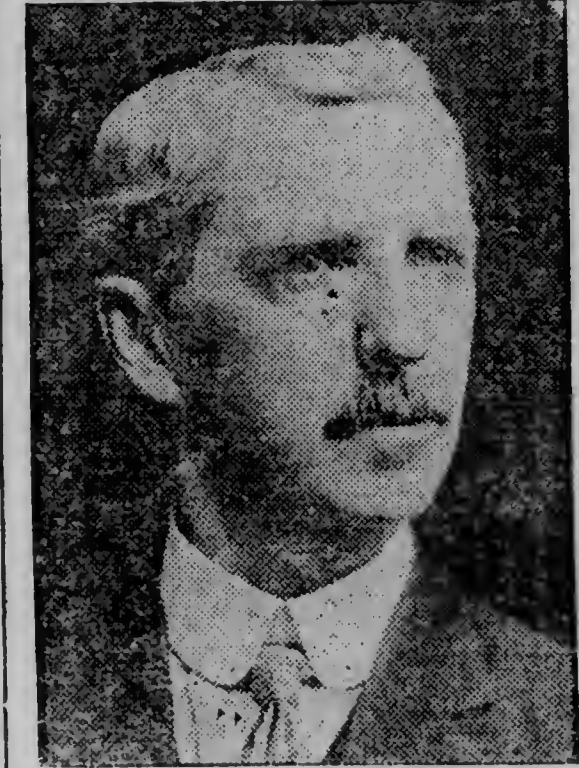

Silberstein said that the social center work planned by the board of public welfare should be put into operation as soon as possible. He said the schools of the city should be used for the benefit of all the people and made neighborhood clubs. He also advocated an efficient business administration of the city's affairs.

W. H. Kunkler, president of the club and candidate for short term commissioner, denounced the St. Paul club for alleged unfairness in its report on him. He said that the declaration of the club that he was in favor of the segregation of Jews was "a plain lie."

Leonidas Merritt was represented by R. E. Patterson, and O. G. Olson, candidate for short term commissioner, also made a short talk.

JOHN T. DUNPHY

CITY COMMISSIONER FOR LONG TERM

To the Intelligent Citizens and Voters of the City of Duluth:

Having been nominated as a candidate for Long Term Commissioner, of the City of Duluth, I believe the people have a right to know from myself who I am, and what of my policy if elected, rather than from a rabble of incompetent, self-constituted judges, of the proper qualities necessary to serve the city honestly and capably.

I was born in Duluth in 1855, and have been a constant resident since 1876.

I am not a candidate of any clique, clan, interest or organization, and if any organization or league, loyal or otherwise has endorsed or is supporting my candidacy, it has been without my consent, knowledge or solicitation.

My belief in municipal ownership of public utilities is not second to any other man's belief in that policy, and is not "put on" for stage effect. Whether elected or not, and in spite of any aggregation of "non-coms", I am for law enforcement without favoritism, a moral city, a clean city.

Duluth's Spring Cleaning Is Under Way

Spring arrived officially some days ago, but Old Sol was behind the schedule.

The big chief of the skies didn't get on the job until a couple of days ago, and although he hasn't been working overtime his presence has been felt. While his smiles have been warming the atmosphere, turning it up as it were, damp underfoot.

Duluthians haven't been desiring him to become too fervid all at once. There is still so much snow on the ground that anything approximating warm weather would cause a miniature flood. As it is the water is beginning to run down the gutters close to capacity, filling the hills in fair-sized streams.

If the snow goes rather gradually it will prevent the water rushing into the basements and washing out the streets. In one way it might be a blessing as the flood might wash away the tons of dirt and filth which have been allowed to accumulate along the thoroughfares since early last fall.

This can be handled, though more slowly, by the board of public works. Crews have been at work shoveling snow and ice from the gutters and piles of loads of snow, ice and filth are being carted to the dump. Tons are hundreds of tons in the business area alone. As soon as the bulk of the snow is removed the board will start crews with the flushing machines, supplemented by flushings at night with the big strings of hoses. When the pavements are fairly visible the white-wings will be brushed and little push carts will begin to dot the streets once more.

Being situated on the hillside, the main-traveled streets in the lower section get the bulk of the snow water. This makes sloppy crossings and patches of some size. But the sewers and dikes of some size. But the sewers and dikes have been well equipped to catch basins have been well equipped to catch the bulk of the water will be caught by the big storm sewer pipes before it has time to travel any considerable distance. The traveled any considerable distance. The walking is not of the best and the majority of citizens have supplied themselves with rubbers. They have also been found to be a decided aid in walking after sundown, when the atmosphere gets cold enough to freeze the water on the walks, making them slippery.

The automobiles are beginning to come out in numbers. Some have been in service all winter, but the bulk of them have been laid up pending the arrival of spring. In some instances the owners have been given a slight scare when the driver has pulled too close to the curb. The snow and ice are still quite heavy and where the wheels of one side get into the gutter which has been cleaned out the cars take a dangerous tilt. Several have experienced considerable difficulty in getting out of the ditches.

TALKS ON AMUSEMENTS. Evangelist Whiston Says Church Must Oppose All That Is Wrong.

The Christian church was filled again last night to hear Evangelist Whiston on "Popular Amusements," based upon the parable of the prodigal son. The evangelist laid down some fundamental principles by which every Christian might find the line between right or wrong amusements. He said: "Any institution that does more harm than good in the world is wrong for the church to support. If the dance and card table do more harm than good, the church must oppose them. Again, we must not put the stamp of wrong upon that which is right, neither must we take the stamp of right upon that which is wrong. One extreme is as bad as the other. The fact that we want to do a thing does not make it right. These are moral questions and must be settled from the Christian standpoint. Again, anything that hurts one's physical being, his Christian life or his Christian influence, is wrong. With these principles in mind, there are three indictments that might be offered against certain amusements. "First, they appeal to the passions of men. In Chicago there are 3,700 professional gamblers, 70 per cent of whom learned to play cards in Christian homes. Cards are to the gambler what nitro-glycerine is to the burglar—the tool he uses. Jane Addams of Hull House, says that 99 per cent of fallen women took their first downward step in the dance and that 76 per cent of this 99 per cent, took their first step downward from the so-called parlor dance. Figures don't lie, though sometimes liars figure—but in this case it is an authority who has given the figures.

"Mr. Whiston also discussed the two indictments that certain amusements destroyed the spiritual life of the church, and were against the teaching and spirit of the New Testament. He said further:

"The church must be the social center, providing for the social development of her members. It is not sufficient to say, 'Thou Shalt Not,' but let the church tell her members what they can do and enter into the pleasures that are legitimate. If we don't provide for the social development the world will be a better place than it is now. There will be no meeting tonight, but it is planned to make Sunday a big day. Evangelist Whiston will speak at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. in the same church, at Twelfth avenue east and Fourth street.

CANDIDATE FOR
(LONG TERM)

I am a candidate for the Long Term Commissionership under the new commission form of government, and I respectfully request the support of the voters of Duluth.

On Jan. 18, 1897, I became treasurer of Duluth when it was then only a village. I have held the office of treasurer continuously since then. During those twenty-six years I have tried to transact the business of my office economically, faithfully and efficiently; to do everything in my power to make the city's credit gilt-edged; and to keep Duluth's finances in such a shape that any taxpayer or voter may get whatever information he desires about them, at any time he wants it. I believe that these twenty-six years of experience have given me the opportunity that no other man has had, to become equipped to serve the city on the new commission. I have tried to make my job as treasurer a profession. I know I have served the city honestly and faithfully in the past, and I believe I have served it efficiently. If elected, I promise the voters that my service in the future will be just as honest, just as faithful, and more efficient if I can make it so.

JOHN WESENBERG

CANDIDATE FOR LONG TERM COMMISSIONER

To the Voters of Duluth:

I am a candidate for commissioner, long term. If elected, how will I serve you?

More than a year ago, the people of Duluth voted $700,000 for a municipal electric lighting plant. They have not got it yet. If elected, my most efforts will be to carry out the people's clearly-expressed will and acquire such a plant.

The street railway service in Duluth can be improved, extended and made cheaper. The published statement of earnings by the Street Railway company itself showed that the company earned over one-half million dollars net during twelve months previous to the late strike. A half million dollars net profit on a capitalization of less than three million dollars is pretty good profit. Plainly the fare can be reduced. The city should own the street railways, extend the lines, reduce the fares, and avoid possible future strikes. If elected, I shall steadily work with that end in view at the earliest possible moment.

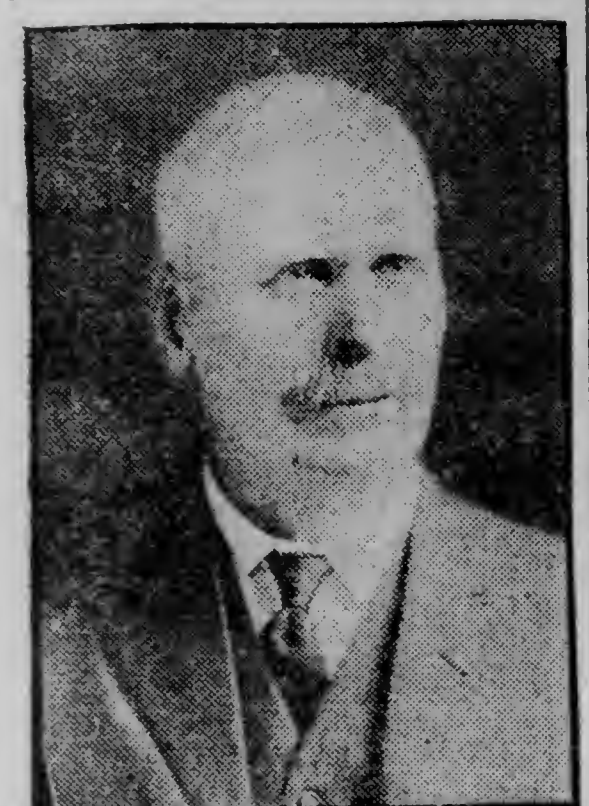

I would close the saloons Sundays and after hours, and I would eliminate the red-light district, holding the owners of buildings over which moral purposes jointly responsible with the mad-ames of the resorts. Morally the owner is responsible; he should be made so legally. I would establish municipal docks in the city at the earliest possible moment. I would stand for an eight-hour day for all municipal work. I would favor advising with all commercial and civic bodies in our city the promotion of our city's interest. In short, I would build up Duluth in every possible way.

If you like my way, vote for me, and I will serve you faithfully.

J. C. WESENBERG.

JAMES W.
PRESTONCANDIDATE FOR LONG TERM
COMMISSIONER.

I have lived in Duluth for the past twenty-seven years. During the first four years I was connected with the state grain inspection department—one year as grain inspector and three years as first assistant grain inspector. Since that time I have followed the contracting business, except two years which I served as a member of the board of public works, resigning that position to take up my old line of work as a contractor, at which I am engaged in at the present time. I believe in the commission form of government, and in the municipal ownership of all public utilities that can be operated in the interest of all the people.

I am in favor of carrying out the wish of the people which has already been expressed in regard to the electric lighting plant and will do all in my power to carry out the wish of the people at the earliest opportunity. I stand for the strict enforcement of all laws with special privileges to none.

If elected I will do my part towards giving Duluth a good, clean, business administration—one that the people will be proud of.

All the officers of the Minnesota Sunday school association were re-elected for the ensuing year at the annual election held yesterday afternoon.

The election was one of the features of the fifty-fifth annual convention of the association now in session at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street. The convention will come to a close tomorrow evening.

The officers for the year are: J. H. Martin of Minneapolis, president; Dr. R. W. Bowden of Duluth, vice president; W. H. Robinson, Taylor Falls, recording secretary; A. C. Hennemann, St. Paul, treasurer; A. M. Locker, Minneapolis, executive field secretary; Miss Edna Holman, Minneapolis, office secretary; Miss Grace M. Longfellow, Minneapolis, education superintendent; Miss Jean Hobart, St. Paul, teachers' training superintendent.

This is the fifth time that President Martin has been re-elected to the office. He was first elected in 1910 and has been given the office each year since.

Other interesting features of the convention sessions yesterday were the reports made by the various officers. The report of the executive field secretary, Gray, D.D., dean of the Moody Institute of Chicago, who was unable to arrive here in time for the opening sessions, was read by Rev. W. S. Athearn of Des Moines, Iowa. Prof. William N. Dresel of Evansville, Ind., A. M. Locker of Minneapolis and John L. Alexander of Chicago.

The boys' congress, the largest gathering of boys ever held in Duluth, started at 9 o'clock this morning at the First Norwegian Lutheran church, Twenty-first avenue west and Third street. Another conference will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon with Dr. R. W. Bowden of Duluth presiding.

clation, three years ago established this department of work and in order to promote the same the following standard has been established:

"The church is building today as never before the need of more definite Christian work by the rank and file of the church membership. This cannot be accomplished without some definite organization for that purpose.

"Bible classes organized with officers and committees in North America. Bible classes are today nearly 40,000 adult and 200,000 children in the United States. The goal for June 1, 1914, in North America is 50,000 classes organized for service with a total enrollment of 2,000,000. It can and ought to be done. Minnesota has 220 classes with a total enrollment of 7,777. We have now a total of 468 classes with a total enrollment of 10,279. The number of certificates issued this year is 124. There are 148 men's classes enrolling 3,255 members; 144 women's classes, enrolling 2,255 members; 177 mixed classes, enrolling 4,988 members. Total number of men in organized classes, 5,185, and total number of women, 5,270. The women outnumbering the men by 182. Last year the women were ahead by only 17; therefore they have gained 145 this year. The men must get busy. We believe they will.

"At present there are only about 200,000 additional on the Cradle Roll and Home Department, making a total of 220,000 who are directly connected with the Sunday school. During 1912 the 220,000 who are enrolled in the public schools of Minnesota 446,083 between the ages of 5 and 21 years of age. This would make it appear that less than half of the children of public school age were in the Sunday school or receiving religious instruction. But this is not true, as quite a percentage of the German and Scandinavian Lutheran send their children to the parochial or church school.

"The Catholic church in Minnesota is very strong and every Catholic child receives very definite religious instruction. It is very safe to say that the 220,000 enrolled in the Protestant Sunday schools can very easily be doubled which the Lutheran and Catholic enrollment is added. However, our goal still gives us the task of adding 30,000 to the enrollment of our Sunday schools. It only means an increase of about 15 per cent. It can be done.

Last evening the regular session was opened with a song service by the union choir. A. M. Locker of Minneapolis spoke on "Our Stewardship." During the evening entertainment graduation of the teachers' training department was held, the principal graduation address being delivered by Prof. W. S. Athearn of Des Moines, Iowa.

HERDING THE SPORTING SHEEP AND GOATS INTO THE DOPE CORRAL, AS SEEN BY BRUCE

REALLY, Bill, it is exceedingly difficult to keep those from the sport happenings of the passing week. There has been nothing of stirring account. Spring is mantling the earth with the adolescence of the being, and it is kind of the time of year when things stand lazily inert, with the thrills of the system awaiting the passing of the drowsy period of the year.

Baseball is upon us; it is virtually forcing its way into our thoughts, and perhaps the two most important events of the week that passes into history with the toll of today's midnights, were those dealing with the baseball servitude of James Archer, the eminent marksman of the Chicago Cubs, and Eddie Konechky, equally prominent as the first baseman of the Cardinals.

After declaring that he would go back and hide his lurid light under the utilitarian basket of some common trade, where it need not necessitate the handling of money in exceedingly small amounts, unless he was paid the stipend of $7,500 per annum, the rifle-shooting peger of the famous champions, of the world capitulated and came into the camp. Lo, and he joined many illustrious holdouts, for Cobb, Marquard, Crawford, Hendrix et al just passed in ahead of Jimmy.

There is the case of Konechky. This young man is perhaps the greatest asset of the St. Louis troupe of major promenaders. But they hate to let loose of the coin down that way, though this habit is not one in the least glued to any particular part of the country, and the result was the failure of Edward to receive the salary he fixed his services at. But nevertheless he came trooping into the fold and will be on deck with the ringing of the opening bell.

WHILE speaking of baseball let us turn to the local situation. During the present week a sport writer by the name of J. H. Ritchie, perhaps feeling in particularly spiteful mood, set before his key and wrote an impertinent attack on the baseball men of this city and also on several of the other towns that are franchise holders in the Northern League.

It is the wont of this egotistical individual to write in the strain of withering sarcasm or lofty superiority. In reality he is one of the poorest informed writers on sports that this large section of the country boasts of. This is stated to free the minds of some of the baseball men around the circuit, and further to explain the bias and utter lack of foundation in the article.

Grandpa Ritchie said that there was ample time for the consideration of the schedule that was published in this paper a week ago. If the Minneapolis writer was sincere in this statement, he has been most prodigiously misinformed; if he stated this in defense of the policy down below, he is telling a grievous untruth.

The schedule—surely a live topic—was railroaded through at the Minneapolis meeting, and we find it now there is the entailing of hundreds of dollars of needless expense that might have been easily avoided with more sober and serious consideration of the date sheet.

LUTHER McCARTY has come out during the present week with several brand new dates, just as some of our leading citizens have appeared on the open with new and gladsome clothes. Did we say a few of our citizens?

Luther has been lampooned and perniciously panned. Why? He has fought more fights in a shorter time than most of the former contenders for honors, and this, too, before the big youngsters reached the voting age. But the rapping was audible clearly enough and the wielding of the hammers only ceased with the announcement of the three fight dates that most of you have already been informed of.

OUR White Sox during the passing chapter designated the assembling date, and this, in a week barren of stirring events, is truly one of the happenings of the past seven days.

At Toledo our hopes are to join and wrestle with the kinks that have accumulated during the seasons of ice and snow. While Ohio is not in the zephyr belt, still it is south and far in the sultry summer regions compared to this belt. After the first week of April the weather should have ridded itself of most of the spasms and go along and behave fairly well.

ONE OF the features of the week was the failure of Tommy Burns to fight one Felmy. We say feature because he failed to fight, as in the case of Burns picking on a poor dub of the Felmy order, the thing would most likely have been one of the unfortunate incidents of the sporting game.

One indeed is compelled to search diligently with the fine tooth comb of inquiry to pick much of today's gossip out of the happenings of the current fifty-second part of year. The winter sport season is on the wane and the pastimes of the summer have not as yet come into their full bloom. We are in the deep and gloomy valley of the interim; there is a yawning hiatus engulfing us just at the present writing, Bill, and one racks the exchanges with furrowed brow vainly endeavoring to dig up some live stuff.

But courage, comrades, the baseball season looms ahead with the glad hailing of a ham sandwich to the distressed and forgetful poetry for the time being—and this desert land will soon be left behind and the country flowing with the milk and honey of sporting events will soon be ours.

P. S. Kid Paul issued a challenge during the week, which is worthy of chronicle.

BROWN PASSES

THROUGH CITY

Chisholm Fighter Returns

Home as Result of Automobile Injuries.

Pal Brown passed through Duluth yesterday on his way to Chisholm. The little fighter was severely bruised as the result of an automobile accident. This is stated to free the minds of some of the baseball men around the circuit, and further to explain the bias and utter lack of foundation in the article.

Brown expressed the opinion that he would be sufficiently recovered from the effects of the accident to keep some of the fight dates that he has scheduled. The battle with Sheridan was to have been staged on April 2 at Memphis, Mo., which caused the result of his contest with Mickey Sheridan.

According to the statement of the little fighter, he is extremely desirous of going to the Pacific coast and seeking a big fight with one of the crack fighters fighting before the Pacific Athletic club.

Calmer, who declares his plans are not definite as yet, he believes that he will wind up on the coast and get on with the running for the lightweight title.

AMATEUR GUE MEN

IN PRETTY RACE

Not since the formation of the National Amateur Three-Cushion Billiard league has the organization seen such a pretty race at the finish, as bids fair to be the case this year.

Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City turned into the stretch neck and neck in the vernacular of the race track—but last week the Windy City players took such a hard fall out of the Kansas City experts that the final drive for first place and the championship seems to have slithered down to two teams, that of Chicago and St. Louis.

And what a battle it should be when the Mound City and the Big Red Sox are fighting before the Pacific Athletic club.

The latter will be represented by Walter Lauben who was the real victor over Kansas City, Stanley Kandel and Jimmy Shea, with Andrew Harris being held in reserve in case of emergency. St. Louis will rely on the clever Mexican, Pierre Maupome, and Calmer, this pair is capable of facing any opponent at the angle game.

The Chicago men, though very clever, are inclined to be spasmodic, but they certainly have a high regard for Maupome, the Mexican more than once showing his skill in matches in the Illinois metropolis.

The Chicago fans are, however, willing to take their chances on the Western champion, Lauben, delivering the goods while Kandel and Shea, say nothing of Harris, have gone through many hard battles both at home and abroad and will be there in the pinch if called upon to help out.

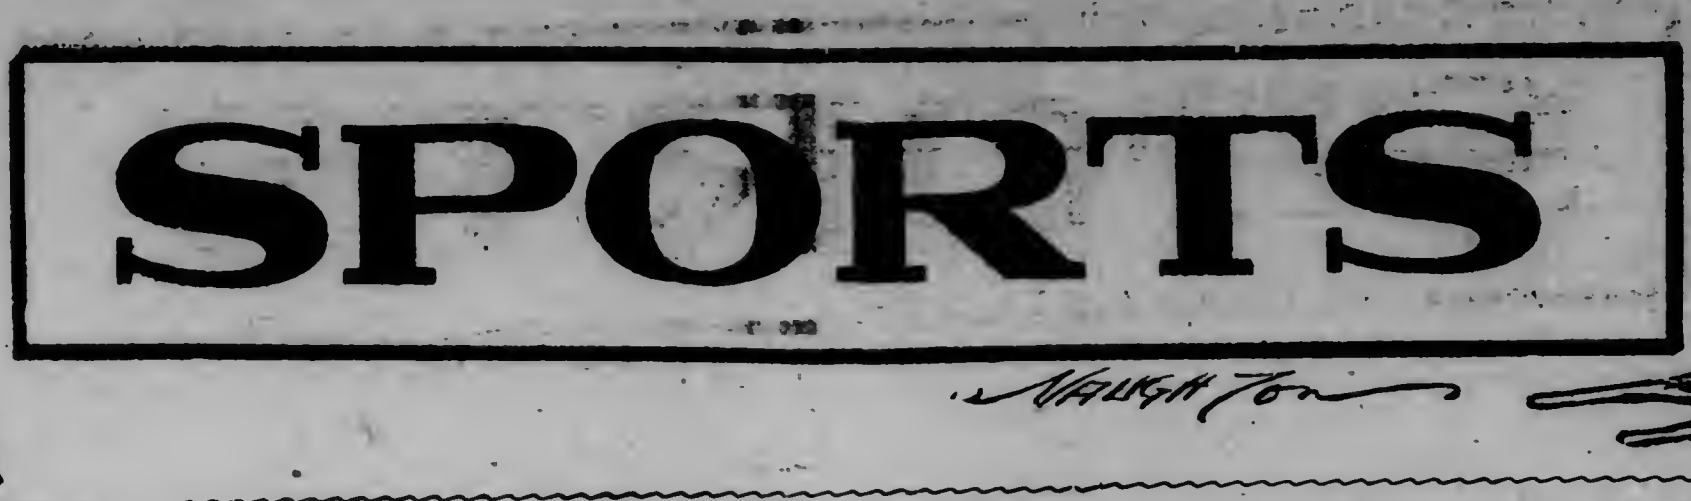

The spectacular play of the two Western towns is being watched with intense interest by the United States which speaks well for the growing popularity of the 3-cushion carom game.

Experts are cropping up all over the country with the probable result that more cities may necessarily be added to those already in the race before the championship season opens next year.

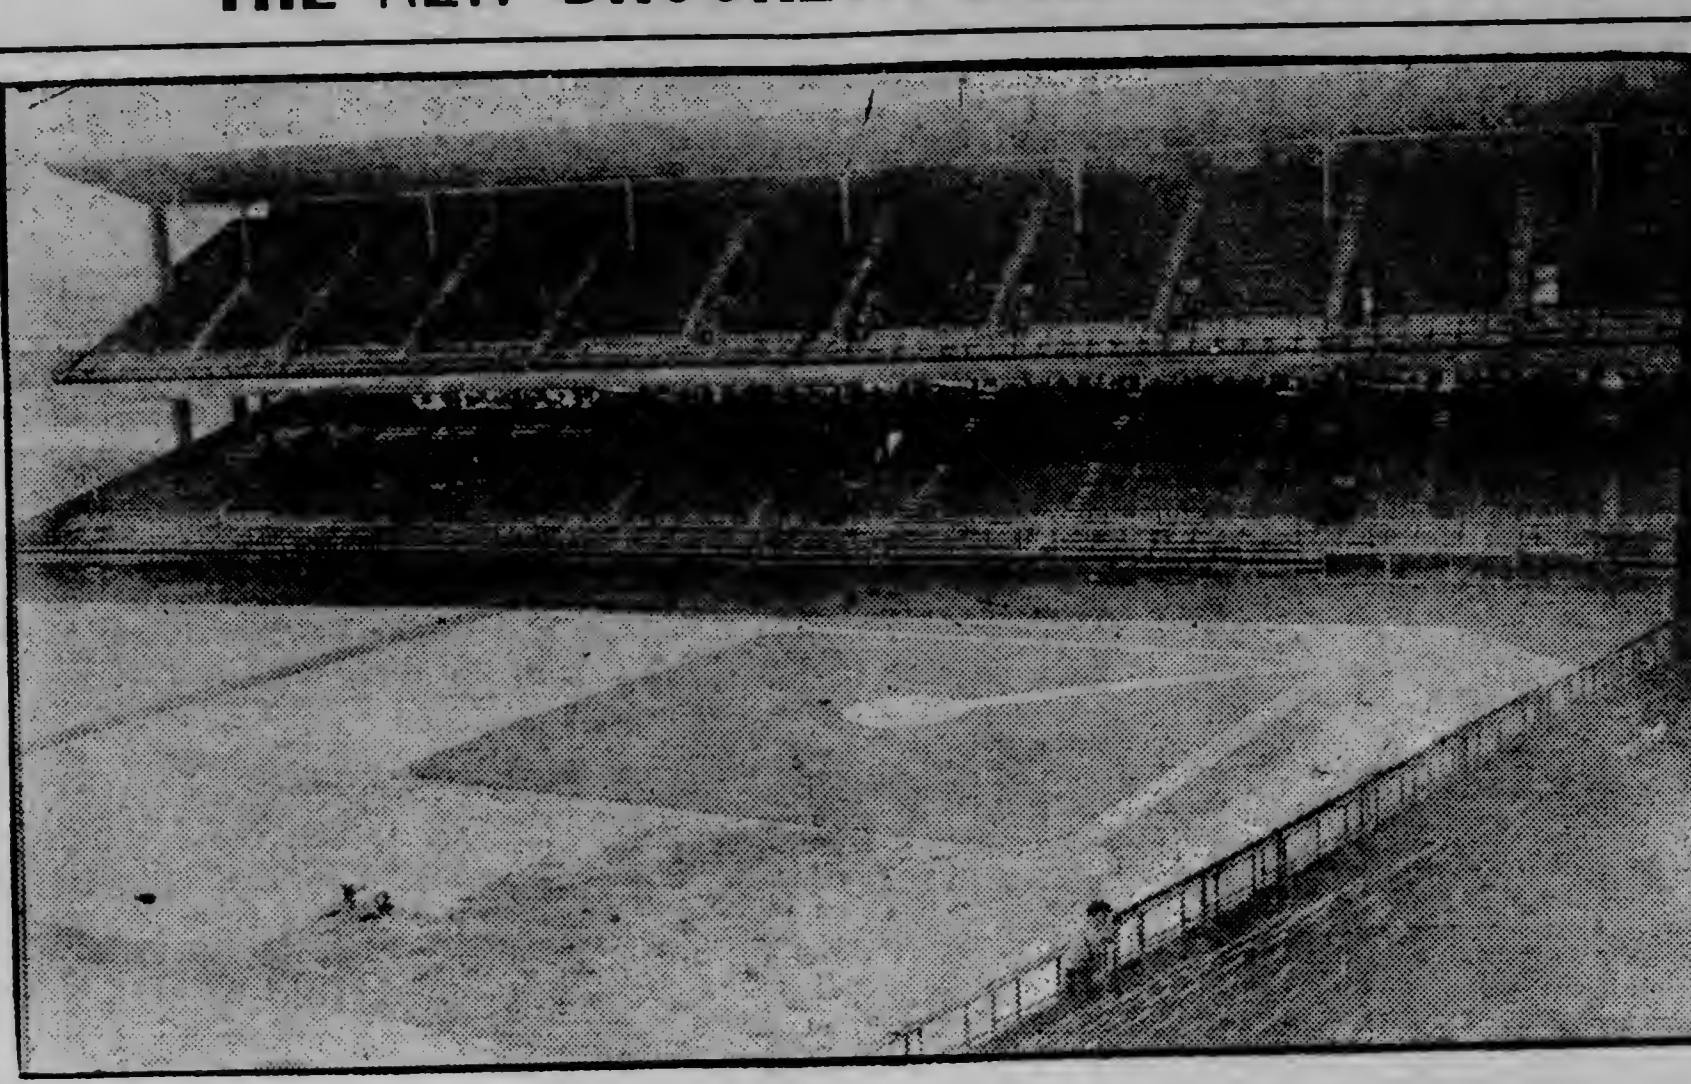

Chicago Americans Lose.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 29.—The Chicago Americans lost another extra business game yesterday, this time at the Los Angeles Pacific coast league team. The game was a two tie with each the end of the ninth inning, and in the eleventh, Los Angeles won.

CAVE MAN YOKEL WINS FROM MELLEN WRESTLER

Walter Willoughby Goes Down to Defeat in Two Straight Falls.

First Bout Decided So Quickly That Audience Is Dazed.

Falling to exhibit the form he showed in his workouts during the week of training he has undergone in Duluth, Walter Willoughby, the pride of Mellen, last evening went down to defeat at the husky hands of Mike Yokel, losing the first fall in two minutes and thirty-six seconds on an arm and leg lock, and the second and deciding fall in thirty-six minutes and thirty-three seconds, a flying mare winding up in a full body hold winning the match for the cave man from the Jackson Hole country.

So fast was the first fall that many in the audience failed to realize what the struggle was. The Salt Lake City referee, who was in the ring, stood up and said: "There is any man who can beat this Mike Yokel, let him come out and try it." The referee, who was in the ring, stood up and said: "There is any man who can beat this Mike Yokel, let him come out and try it."

The two men shook hands and then stepped back and waited the word of the referee. Yokel, who was in the ring, stood up and said: "There is any man who can beat this Mike Yokel, let him come out and try it."

Those in the audience settled back to view with calm quietness the program of the struggle. The Salt Lake City referee, who was in the ring, stood up and said: "There is any man who can beat this Mike Yokel, let him come out and try it."

CITY PLANNING--WHAT TYPE OF CITY WILL DULUTH BE 20 OR 25 YEARS FROM NOW?

PROBLEMS ARE UNIQUE

Will City Merely Spread Out or Be Intelligently Built?

Some Suggestions By a Duluth Architect for Directing Growth.

Traffic Centers, Civic Center and Art Center Are Outlined.

City planning is no longer considered merely a fad in European cities, or in many of the larger cities in America. In many European cities it would be considered just as shortsighted to build a city without a plan as to build a house without a plan.

Robert Loebeck of Duluth has made a study of city planning, and he has written the accompanying article for The Herald. The plans outlined are not offered by Mr. Loebeck as something which can be accomplished this year or next year, or even in five years, but they represent his idea of the definite plan the city should work toward.

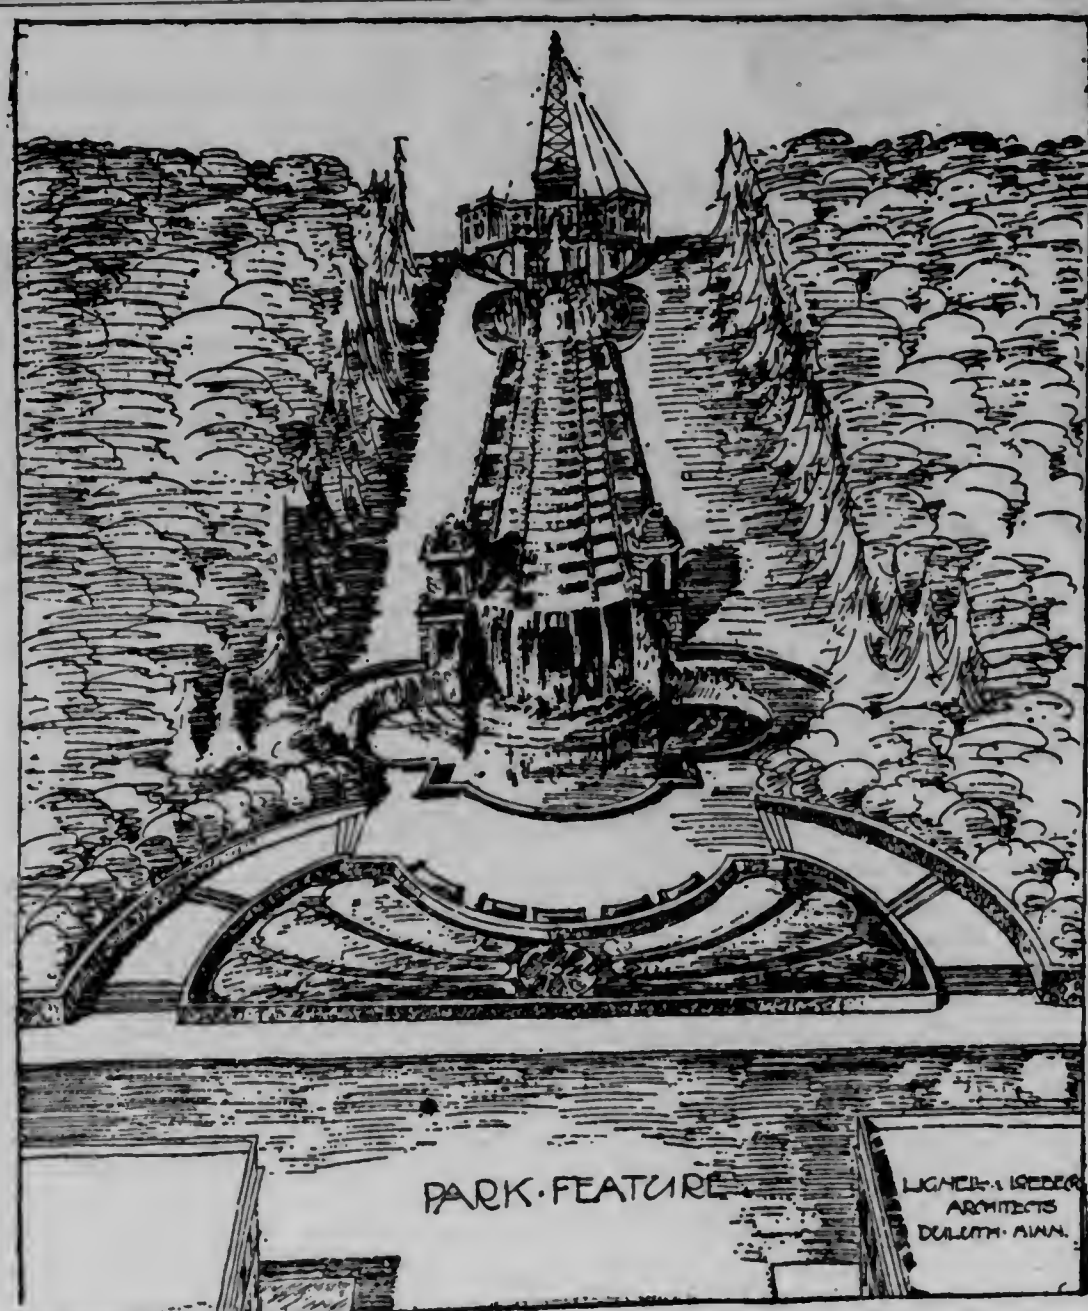

(By Robert Loebeck, Architect.)

"The characteristic of greatness is wisdom to anticipate the future while conserving the present."

Two factors will influence the future importance of the farthest inland shipping point:

1. The steady development of the Northwest and the slowly northward movement of the center of the wheat-growing district.
2. The readjustment in its relationship with the Twin Cities fostered so far by a protective railroad policy to counterbalance the natural advantage of the waterway.

The former will assure the Head of the Lakes a future steady growth.

PICTURE NO. 6-PARK FEATURE.

This picture shows a bird's-eye view of the main park feature of the proposed central park on the hill, the execution of which could be left to future generations or done by prison work by and by.

The building on top which serves as background is thought to be a weather bureau and wireless station. The rain water gathered in ponds on the plateau is led in summer on Sundays and once a week down the while the latter might lead to a sudden extraordinary increase of population.

The future of the Head of the Lakes as a steel making and industrial center is another consideration.

The people of Duluth have seen 40,000,000 tons of iron ore leaving their port annually to bring activity and prosperity to their points of destination and give the port the meager advantage of being one of the biggest tonnage ports of the world. In this respect the cheap waterway of the Great Lakes has made possible the shipment of almost 50 per cent impurities of the iron ore hundreds of miles, while coal consisting of nearly pure carbon had only to be transported the same distance and so has postponed till now the industrial development of Duluth.

The location of the Minnesota steel plant in the vicinity of Duluth will reduce the ore shipment of many million tons and introduce activity and industrial development at the Head of the Lakes but this is not all. The iron and steel manufacturers which developed near the fuel resources are now moving slowly towards their natural location that is to the ore deposits. This movement constitutes the trend of the times and can be ascertained in all the great steel manufacturing countries of the world.

Initial Step.

The location of the Minnesota steel plant near the ore deposits can therefore only be regarded as the initial step to get in contact with the great ore deposits of the country of which the last war in the way of new discoveries is not yet spoken.

The Minnesota steel plant and the industries attracted by it will assure to the Head of the Lakes an increase of its industrial importance and a steady growth of its population, but the tendency mentioned in the foregoing might result in a sudden extraordinary expansion of its cities.

How the Interests Judge the Situation.

The Northern Pacific is building its main switch yards at Carlton. It anticipates big traffic in the future and wants to relieve the Head of the Lakes. It puts the latter in the same class with metropolitan cities where arrangements of this order are in vogue.

Besides the Minnesota Steel company, the Wisconsin Car company, the American Steel and Wire company, the St. Paul Car company, the American Locomotive company, Standard Oil, etc., are attracted by the Head of the Lakes.

The Duluth people, feeling that they need for Duluth a more efficient apron string than preferential railroad rates are now granting a ship canal to connect the St. Louis and the Mississippi rivers in order to participate in the imminent development of the Head of the Lakes.

The above indicates that the future of the Head of the Lakes must be assured and a sudden expansion of its cities reasonably be expected.

Fight for Supremacy.

In the aforesaid it has been tried to justify the expectation of a city of the first order.

There are, however, two competitors who both will benefit from the development of the Head of the Lakes, and the Duluth people seem to be in a law in nature in regard to leadership. It is only natural that the one preponderance and the other try to conquer it.

They have the same strategic advantages: one has the victorious feeling of the leadership, the other the intuitive strength of the inferior. Duluth has twice the number of inhabitants and is the seat of bigger business. Superior possesses a greater facility to build a big city.

Neither of these cities has been called upon to fill extraordinary demands, nor have they been subjected to a sudden growth, but it is obvious that if the latter should occur, it would find an unprepared Duluth and repeat the happenings of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Duluth can overcome its obstacles by wise city planning; that is, the application of human intelligence to overcome impediments of nature, and if it were only for this reason that city planning is justified, its right of existence is self-evident.

City Planning of Duluth.

Duluth is no greenhorn in the matter of city planning, though no attempt has been made so far for a far-reaching city plan. It seems that the accomplishment of the latter has been kept back for the commission form of government, and it takes no prophetic genius to foretell that in one of the next election campaigns city planning will be the war cry.

The creation of our level and convenient streets some twenty years ago marked the first, and the provision of a civic center the second step in Duluth's career of city planning. It is only necessary to follow the old trail by making due allowance for the increased needs and brightened future prospects.

Is City Planning an Investment?

This question is answered by the very cost of necessary improvements considered what could have been accomplished without it, had far-reaching city planning been entered upon at an early date. That what holds good for the whole must be true for the future. A stitch in time will save nine. This is the whole secret.

For Duluth and for other cities in the same position the present cost involved in only postponing for its sake of omission, and the one will grow with the increase of the other.

The accompanying sketches do not pretend to solve the whole problem. They have been prepared with the view of making the public familiar lying districts which supply the town on which the city is built and will be enlarged upon.

1. Connecting these centers among themselves in a manner that several streets take charge of the traffic.
2. Connecting secondary centers and outlying parts of the city among themselves to relieve as much as possible the traffic on the main thoroughfares.
3. Connecting these centers efficiently and conveniently with the outlying districts which supply the town on which the city is built and will be enlarged upon.

PICTURE NO. 5-TREATMENT OF STEEP AVENUES.

Those avenues too steep for traffic and dangerous for passengers should receive a treatment similar to that shown on this bird's-eye view.

The level ground gained would afford gardens and playgrounds for children. The buildings and houses would be supplied from the inland street and alleys, while the improved steep avenues serve as safe and convenient short-cuts for pedestrians. The execution of this scheme should be factored by the city and left to the owners, while the improved steep PICTURE NO. 2-MAP OF DULUTH, EAST OF ROCKY POINT.

This map shows the main part of Duluth east of rocky point. It is very probable that West end and West Duluth in some future time will equal it in importance and receive about the same treatment.

The built up retail center has been left untouched on account of the high expense involved and also as the point of gravity is shifting slowly eastwards and in the not remote future the intersection of Superior street and Lake avenue will be the center of this part of the city.

Minnesota Point is the reserve of Duluth harbor and will have docks and warehouses. A tunnel will then be built underneath the channel to connect this stretch of land more efficiently with Duluth.

This intersection has therefore been used as the starting point of the main diagonal street leading north. Another diagonal gives First street its share of traffic towards the west and leads to the civic center. A square of smaller or larger dimensions could be created and the future necessary Union depot be placed on its south boundary. This square can be made level by letting Michigan avenue pass underneath.

To counterbalance the civic center an art center has been planned to receive future art gallery and museum. The avenue inserted into opposition could with opera house, orchestra hall, auditorium and university form an educational center with the crowning feature of the high school tower.

To the string of natural parks connected by the boulevard a more centrally located park has been added which received in contrast with the natural waterfalls a cascade modeled after one of the most famous ones of Europe.

To pay for all this (except the park feature which could be left for future generations or done by prison labor by and by) it is proposed to redeem part of the lake by filling in between the channel wall and the shore and sell the lots to wholesale merchants. The low-lying ground would afford double-decked streets the lower one reserved for rails and out of town trade, the upper one for city traffic.

DAMAGES FOR FALSE ARREST

Jack Dine, who brought suit in district court against Charles Older, alleging false imprisonment and asking $1,000 damages, was taken to P. J. Meyers of the St. Louis Poultry Supply company a few days ago by a man whom he had purchased the fowl as a spring fry from a grocer in the West end. The freak bird's owner was preparing to kill it when he noticed the peculiar mixture of chicken and duck. He did without the chicken dinner to find out what sort of a fowl he had.

The bird stands erect like a broad neck runner duck and has the broad neck and smooth, downy breast of a duck, colored like the wild mallard species. The legs are the exact counterpart of the ordinary duck's, but the toes are not webbed and a small spur appears on each of the legs. The head of the rooster's tail is lacking altogether, the shrill growl is much in evidence. J. Meyers saw the bird he told the owner immediately was willing to sell the bird for $5. Meyers purchased it and he said he had a standing offer of $25. When he is ready to sell he expects to get $50 for the freak.

MRS. JAY H. HOAG.

One of the interesting events of next week will be the presentation of the two little comedies in one act, "The Flying Wedge" and "A Proposal under Difficulties" which will be given on Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. assembly hall by members of the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church under the direction of Miss Agnes May Johnson. Careful rehearsing has brought the plays up to a high standard for amateur affairs and promises to give a most enjoyable evening. A special feature is music by the "Fun-Fun" orchestra, conducted by Olga Von Goudasch, which is shrouded in mystery. The casts of the plays are as follows: "The Flying Wedge," Tom Hurlbut, (captain Duluth Foot-ball team), Alex McDonald, Jr. (Percy Supt.), Miss Louella Youngs, (Le Sol), by Saint-Saens and the other members of the class sang a little French folk song, "Au Clair de la Lune."

STAGE LAND

At the Lyceum

A very novel program will be presented at the Lyceum - afternoon, entitled "A Coach Ride Through Yellowstone Park." This entertainment will be presented in the form of motion pictures taken on the top of a stage coach and will show to the audience the most wonderful natural scenery in the world. The pictures will be explained by a competent lecturer. A very elaborate stage setting has been prepared in which to present these pictures. The spectator is placed on a six-horse coach at the Gardiner Arch, which was dedicated by President Roosevelt, through the Gardner river stage coach and will show to the audience the most wonderful natural scenery in the world.

HARRY MORSE, KATHERINE AUSTIN AND OLIVE ALBERTI, Who Are Coming to the Empress Next Week.

will be seen a large herd of buffaloes, then to the upper basin, where he will see a perfect reproduction of all the geysers, including "Old Faithful," "Grotto Geyser," "The Bee Hive," etc. The trip will also include a launch ride across Yellowstone lake, showing wild elk, a flock of pelicans, a school of trout and the famous Yellowstone bears at play. From Yellowstone lake the tourist is taken to the grand canyon of the Yellowstone, the most gorge in the world has this singularly defined yet ornate and involved sculpturing that is seen here and no other exhibits such a riot of color as does this. There is no figure of speech that will adequately describe this wonderful scene.

There will be two performances of "A Coach Ride Through Yellowstone Park," a matinee at 2:30 and one evening performance at 8:20. The performance lasts two hours.

A woman who is universally admired by her own sex is sure to be possessed of an infinite number of charms; the same may be said of an actress who is popular with women. Adelaide Thurston is such an actress. Her gentle and appealing character, her power to portray characters that combine the buoyancy of youth and the purity of unadorned womanhood, caused Charles Frohman to select Miss Thurston for the role of Lady Babbalanja in Barrie's exquisite creation, "The Little Minister." The young actress proved herself to be an ideal Lady Babbalanja, and it was her charming interpretation of the famous character that established her reputation as a "woman's actress."

There are on the American stage many female stars about whom men rave, but who do not appeal to their own sex, and are, on that account, only indifferently successful; but the actress who invariably finds a crowd of matinee girls waiting at the stage door to see her leave the theater need not worry about her future. If the matinee girls go to see her, the men will be sure to follow.

Miss Thurston while abroad the past summer purchased some exquisite gowns, with which to grace her new play, "The Love Affair." The real success attained by Miss Thurston is attributed in a large part to the fact that she gives her personal attention to every detail concerning her productions. She is ably assisted in this, her latest vehicle, by Frederick Paulding, the author, who, through being associated with her very mood, Paulding selected the supporting company, including W. A. Whitecar, Edwin Walter, Mary Davis, Sara Enright, Edward Delaney, Olive Artelle, Graham Earle, and Edwin Burke.

Francis X. Hope has given "The Love Affair" a magnificent scenic production. Miss Thurston will be at the Lyceum Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

At the present day when so many plays are being presented which deal with questionable subjects, it is a relief to turn to a drama which breathes purity and good fellowship and leads the way to a brighter view of life and humanity.

Such a play is "The Rosary," written by Edward E. Rose, expressly for Messrs. Rowland and Clifford, and produced by them. The theme of the play concerns a man and a woman happily married and surrounded with every luxury that money and culture can secure, but the husband is an unbeliever, an atheist, without faith of any kind. There is a jarring note in the household harmony, a personality at war with the peace and love of its members. No one notices this until a friend of the husband comes, Father Kelly, a priest of the modern world with a deep insight into human nature and a divine love for his fellow men. And when stress and trouble come when the home is wrecked and husband and wife are brought down to the depths of suffering and agony it is the priest's calm courage and faith that saves them, drives away the clouds of suspicion, doubt, mistrust and brings them both into the sunlight of hope and love.

The play will be seen at the Lyceum next Saturday matinee and night with Harry Terry in the role of Father Brian Kelly, the priest.

The eternal triangle, two men and a woman, is completed quickly by Eugene Walter in the first act of his dramatization of John Fox, Jr., "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Step by step the story develops and you follow the trail on the stage just as you followed it in the book, with the mountain characters, mounted and dismounted, appearing and reappearing in the vicinity of the lonesome pine. June's unconscious wooing of Jack sweeps onward with the freshness of a mountain breeze, and though grim jealousy threatens to interfere, June's love conquers, even though she leaves the school she is sent to and returns to her primitive home in the mountains. The play comes to the Lyceum for four days, commencing Sunday, April 6.

In this age of frivolous musical comedy, patter songs and ragtime, the musician classes will welcome with zest the big spectacular revival of Barrie's masterpiece, "The Bohemian Girl," in English, which the Aborn Opera Company will offer at the Lyceum for two days, in April. The Messrs. Aborn have made a special and most elaborate production of this grand old opera, that is said to rival the most important metropolitan productions in point of massive and magnificent stage investiture. Consistently introducing therein many novel and sensational features, yet Barrie's delightful score, with its wealth of heart-stirring, beautiful melodies, has not been slighted. The music will be sung by an important cast of well-known singers.

Alice Lloyd, jolly little English star of "The Rose Maid," has made numberless thousands laugh, but she is an unusual prima donna of merry temperament who seems to enjoy it all herself and laughs so sympathetically with her audience, as to make her sense of good fellowship one of her greatest charms.

No woman player in the world has been so honored by prominent associations as she. She was the first woman to be made an honorary member of the far-reaching Order of Elks, the important lodge No. 1 of New York City having welcomed her to its fold. From the walls of the New York lodge, Providence, R. I., lodge and that of New Orleans, great pictures of Miss Lloyd look smilingly down upon the members.

The dainty star was given a diamond-studded medal by the theater-going public of London as their choice of the most delightful of English comedienne. Her New York home on Riverside drive boasts a solid silver service given her by English residents of Cape Town, South Africa, and a quilt hat rack formed from four huge elephant tusks came from the British Residents' club of Bombay, India.

It is generally known that Miss Lloyd is the idol of her fellow players in each of her companies, and perhaps no gift that has come to her seems so valuable in her own mind as the immense silver loving cup from her company, with the inscription, "To the Sweetest of Them All."

It is now some years since William H. Crane undertook to give to the stage the first splendid picture of a United States senator that had been utilized for dramatic purposes. And he is to assume the modern toga of a body in the world again, and once more is to masquerade as a senator. This second assumption of the character will be in the central figure of Martha Morton's new comedy, "The Senator Keeps House," which Mr. Crane will introduce here shortly. The company was brought out at the Garrick theater in New York last season and made one of the solid hits in a year that was noted for the extent of its dramatic triumphs.

At the Orpheum

Gus Edwards himself is coming to the Orpheum next week. This George Cohan of the vaudeville world is one of the real leaders among vaudeville producers. He has more musical acts scattered about through the vaudeville theaters of America than he can keep track of and he doesn't even know the number of songs he has written. For his present Orpheum tour Mr. Edwards has a company of twenty-five young people, mostly boys and girls just entering their "20s," and he is presenting a lively musical comedy lasting about an hour. He calls it "The Song Review of 1913," and it is more of a song review than a musical comedy. The songs are all of Mr. Edwards' composition and the song and dance numbers are said to be given by the youthful chorus with a vim and a fire that no ordinary musical comedy chorus can imitate. SCENES FROM ADELAIDE THURSTON'S NEWEST COMEDY, "THE LOVE AFFAIR," AT THE LYCEUM MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

will offer a comedy sketch called "A Lesson in Reform." Miss Modena is assisted by Charles H. Gardner, and their act is claimed to offer about twenty minutes of excellent comedy.

"The Pianophilend Minstrels" will long be remembered by old time vaudeville patrons. This act was famous all over the United States as one of the best vaudeville novelties ever staged. It ran for years and the hit of the act was scored by Ben Linn, the huge comedian who was a member of the company. Mr. Linn weighs something over 300 pounds. He is now traveling alone and will be on next week's bill in the Duluth theater. Mr. Linn has an act consisting of a number of songs and dances. In spite of his weight he is said to be a clever eccentric dancer, and with his piano playing, singing and comedy patter he has been successful this season.

Roxy La Rocco, a harpist with a big European reputation, will be heard next week, and will offer about the only serious number on this all-comedy bill. La Rocco made his reputation in Italy and claims that the harp which he plays was presented to him by King Emanuel of that country. He plays some popular music, but most of his numbers are taken from the genre of musical literature.

Les Alvarez are two novelty European gymnasts, a man and a woman. They will present the sixth act on the bill.

The motion pictures and the concert by the Orpheum orchestra will continue all week with a daily matinee. The foods in Ohio will delay for one week the opening of the Edison talking pictures in Duluth. Manager Billings received word today that the machine is in an express car that is stalled some place in the flooded district and there is no chance for it to reach Duluth in time for the opening a week from tomorrow. The pictures will be seen and heard in Duluth for the first time April 13.

Orpheum Notes.

Her success in vaudeville has caused Blanche Walsh to abandon the idea for another season at least, of returning to the legitimate stage. Miss Walsh has secured a new sketch called "Countess Nadine," and has arranged to play it in a tour which includes the entire Orpheum circuit.

An English comedienne who has until now not been content with the laurels gained in her own country is Miss Cecile Bessford. Miss Bessford has only just arrived in America, and on Monday, March 24, at Chicago, began her initial American tour, the itinerary for which calls for an immediate Orpheum circuit tour.

Before returning to musical comedy, in which he is again to be starred, Victor Moore will play a few weeks over the Orpheum circuit. He will, of course, be assisted by Marian Littlefield, and will be seen in that uproarious "back stage" farce, "Change Your Act or Back to the Woods."

The "triple alliance" of Victor Herbert, George V. Hobart and William Burress has resulted in a new edition of "The Song Birds," a satire on present conditions in grand opera. Mr. Herbert composed the music, Mr. Hobart wrote the book and Mr. Burress is the star of the company. He is supported by thirty players.

Zelda Sears put aside her sketch, "The Wardrobe Woman," long enough for a trip to Europe. She has only just returned and has established her company preparatory to beginning a tour over the Orpheum circuit.

Lambert, the protean musician, will shortly be seen over the Orpheum circuit. In the course of a few minutes Lambert impersonates various noted composers—at the same time playing their favorite composition on the instrument associated with them.

At the Empress

What promises to be another excellent bill of vaudeville is booked for the Empress theater for four days commencing Sunday matinee, March 30.

There are few good monologists in vaudeville. It requires more than merely a few good stories and jokes to make a monologist successful. To stand out in front of an audience for fifteen minutes and entertain them requires personality and quick wit. The bill is said to have the personality as well as the jokes and stories. His act promises to be a very bright spot on next week's bill.

A dainty little woman is Mable Elaine, who will do some very clever eccentric singing and dancing. Her act is full of comedy and her facial expressions amusing. She makes a change of costume for each number. The hit of her song repertoire is a "Faithful Girl," a comedy song which receives encore after encore.

Another big act on this bill will be Reed's Acrobatic Bull Terriers. These wonderful dogs perform many hard and puzzling feats. They turn complete somersaults, backward and forward, climb almost perpendicular ladders, jump from heights of twenty-five feet and more, dance and do a number of lag trick that will make the audience laugh at the queer and clever antics of these animals.

As a closing act, "The Rough House Kids" have been secured. A "veritable" is the best description of this act. Fun, music, dances, jokes and laughter are the order.

To close a strong bill the management will present the alien actors in photoplays and animated pictures never before seen in Duluth.

A strong program is promised by the Empress management for the last three days of the week commencing Thursday, April 2. Headline this bill will be Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young in a very pleasing and strong playlet entitled "Early Days East and West." An act rivaling Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young for first position is "Pectico," the most marvelous dancer in vaudeville. Her dance creations are said to be superb. Then there is Max and Cameron in their imitable automation comedy and "Jerry," one big round comedy and dancing team Denny and Palmer, have received many favorable comments from the managers along the road.

Among the song numbers in Minnie Palmer's "Running for Congress," which will be seen at the Empress soon are: "Alabama," "Tipperary Mary," "Skill That Bear," "Gone on Silvery Moon," and "Dreams." With a chorus of twelve pretty girls supporting the principals and the college trio among the male chorus men, these numbers are "put over" in a clever way. At one stage of the performance the college trio entertains on its own account. It is very likely that this act is familiar to theatergoers. They are three nice looking fellows playing stringed instruments and singing and dancing at the same time. Other star performers in the group are Le Roy and Cahill, Ferdinand Abbey, Maggie Le Clair, Daisy Brownie and Walter Brown.

Norman Friedenwald's "The Girl From Dublin," a merry musical farce, employing a dozen capable artists and a chorus of unusual ability has been secured for an engagement at the Empress for the week of April 20, and a real treat may be expected, to judge from the news that precedes this attraction. Every advance report indicates that the coming of "The Girl From Dublin" will be the event of the season in a comedy way, that laughter will reign supreme with real ing spells made pleasurable by a pretty chorus in evolutions and song.

For those to whom a hearty laugh means much, "Honeymoon Trail," a gratifying entertainment. It is full of clever comedy and catchy music and songs, interpreted by a clever company of performers and pretty girls to the number of thirty. It ran for 200 nights at the La Salle theater in Chicago to capacity houses of delighted auditors.

It is so unusual a thing for every newspaper critic in both New York and Chicago to agree unanimously with his brother critic as to the merits and delights of a musical comedy, that the fact that this rare avia occurred in the instance of Mort. H. Singer's "A Stubborn Cinderella" at the Princess theater, Chicago, and the Broadway theater, New York, should be loudly blazoned forth. The Chicago Examiner even reviewed the play a second time, after its third performance, proving it must be an entertainment of far more merit than the ordinary.

"You cannot discharge me or fire me off this stage for I have a pull with the chief of police and you get fresh with me and I will have your old show thrown out of the theater." Is one of speeches delivered by the little chorus girl who comes in late to work. This takes place in the big dress rehearsal scene of the big revue, "Miss Nobody From Starland," which will be the season's novel event at the Empress soon. Many natural comedy situations are drawn in this famous scene and this one scene has received more favorable publicity through newspapers and magazines than any scene ever constructed.

Empress Notes.

William Gross, of Gross & Jackson, principal comedian with "Running for Congress," has signed with William S. Clark's "Midnight Maidens," burlesque, for next season, and will be featured with the show. The book for the new "Midnight Maidens" show is being written by Leon Errol of "Ziegfeld's Follies," formerly a partner of Mr. Gross. William B. Friedlander is the author of words and music of "The Western Rag," said to be the song hit of "The Flower of the Ranch."

Senator Frank Montrose has a principal comedy part in "Miss Nobody From Starland," which recently underwent the tabloidizing process.

Charles Le Roy, who recently returned to America from China, has the principal comedy role in "I Should Worry," a tabloid now rehearsing, which is owned by the Interstate Producing company, of which William B. Friedlander is the head.

Adair and Hickey may invade the tabloid musical comedy field next season offering a production of which Leo Kraus and themselves will be owners and proprietors.

"A Society Circus" will be the title of a show that the Interstate Producing company will send out next September. A prominent society woman in every town played will be secured for either a song, a dance, or for some sort of a stunt.

Oliver Labadie, well known in almost every style of entertainment, is now with one of Minnie Palmer and Norman Friedenwald's tabloid enterprises.

I got some Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I would wash his face and hands every morning with Cuticura Soap, then I repeated the same way in the evening. It took about two weeks before he was completely cured."

MARCH WILL MAKE RECORD FOR ACTIVITY IN BUILDING

Permit for New Ore Dock Will Swell Month's Figures.

New Theater to Be Built—Many New Churches Planned.

March will probably be the record month of the year in building permits owing to the issuing of a $1,500,000 permit this week to the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern railroad for the construction of a new ore dock at the foot of Thirty-second avenue west. It is the biggest building permit which has been taken out since that of $10,000,000 for the steel plant issued in 1910. It will, in all likelihood, remain the record permit of the year. The railroad company paid the city a fee of $750.

The new ore dock will be one of the most modern in existence. The work of driving piles for it is now nearing completion. The work of laying concrete foundations for the steel work will be started as soon as the snow is off the ground. The railroad company is a subsidiary of the steel corporation.

As soon as the snow is gone at New Duluth the work of laying twelve miles of new track for terminal purposes in connection with the steel plant and cement works will be prosecuted. When completed it will give a total of twenty miles, eight having already been laid.

E. M. Hgar, the president of the Universal Portland Cement company, one of the big subsidiary concerns of the steel company, which is planning the construction of a plant at Gary, Ind., is expected to open an office here. It is expected that the plant will be manufacturing cement before 1915.

Of interest in building circles is the assurance of a new theater, costing about $70,000, to be erected on the southwest corner of Second avenue west and First street. This summer, Thomas Furness, who now owns and manages the Odessa and Lyric theaters, on West Superior street, will be the constructor and owner of the new theater. The building will be by street front and three stories high. It will be strictly modern and up-to-date in all of its appointments. Mr. Furness says that it will be a moving picture house, but that it will have a stage so arranged that it may be converted into a vaudeville, burlesque or dramatic house if development requires it. The property on which the theater will be built is that which was once occupied by the Kendall barn. Mr. Furness has taken a long lease on the property and has organized a company for the purpose of building.

The coming summer will see quite a movement in church building. In the western suburbs, no less than seven edifices are contemplated. They are: New Duluth Catholic church, New Duluth, Swedish Mission church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Greene street; Precinct M. E. church, Proctor; Christ's Episcopal church, Proctor; Midway Swedish Lutheran church, Midway; Congregational church, Poncha du Lac; Episcopal church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Ellner street.

Architect Vernon J. Price will take bids the latter part of next week on a 12-room grade school house to be built at Crosby, Minn. The new structure will have every modern appointment and will cost in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Kelly & Williams, architects, have plans for the new E. R. Cobb school to be built this spring at Woodland, ready for the contractors. The structure will be a four-room affair with assembly hall and will cost $35,000.

Architect P. M. Olson will take bids next week on a two-story brick residence, costing $10,000, to be built for J. H. Josephson at Menominee, Wis. He is now taking figures on the Olson Peterson residence to be built on the northeast corner of Twentieth avenue east and Fourth street at a cost of $7,000.

Municipal politics and the keen interest which is being manifested in the outcome of Duluth's first election under the commission form of government and new city charter, has probably been responsible for a slight falling off in the trading on the local realty market this week. Realty men and investors have nothing particular at all in Tuesday's election, except to see that the voters endorse five men who will give the city a clean business administration. Under such realty conditions are bound to be bettered.

During the past week, trading was fairly active as indicated by the volume of real estate transfers which have been put on record. As far as is known, no big deals were put through by local dealers, although many brokers reported good sized propositions pending. The average market, which halted temporarily during the cold

NEW STORE BUILDING IN THE FOURTH STREET DISTRICT

The building, above shown, is a two-story brick store and flat building which was erected this winter for L. K. Daugherty on the lower side of Fourth street between Fifth and Sixth avenues east. The building fronts twenty-five feet and is 100 feet deep. The lower story is now occupied by the owner as a hardware store. Mr. Daugherty lives in the second story. The cost of the structure was $15,000. Vernon J. Price was the architect.

months of January and February, is again coming to the front. The thaw of the past week will be a boon to land dealers who have been waiting for the snow to go in order that they might show their properties.

E. D. Field & Co., advise the sale of two residence properties in Portland division this week. They sold to Ellen Olson from Anton Strand, a two-story dwelling house at 1125 East Fifth street. The consideration was $2,300. William H. Marcellus, through the same agency, sold an eight-room dwelling house at 277 Eleventh avenue east to A. C. Redlock. The consideration was not made public. The purchaser, it is stated, will make extensive improvements on the property and put it on the market again.

The Steel Plant Investment company, of which H. H. Peyton is president, this week sold thirteen lots at Gary, Mr. Peyton advises that inquiry was never better and that the outlook never more promising. The lots sold are described as follows: Lots 1, 2 and 3 in block 47; lot 1 in block 17; lots 22 and 23 in block 46; lots 5, 6, 7, 24 and 25 in block 43; lots 12 and 13 in block 23.

A house and lot fronting fifty feet on the east side of Fifty-ninth avenue west between Cody and Ellner streets, was sold this week from E. J. Brownson to John E. Wennberg for $1,250.

The residence of Robert S. Grogan at 526 Twelfth and a-half avenue east was this week sold to William E. Thompson for a consideration of $2,500.

August J. Noren has transferred a 50-foot frontage at the southwest corner of Sixth avenue east and Seventh street to Sanford Blodot for a consideration of $2,200.

A 50-foot lot on the lower side of Lake street between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues east was sold to Joseph Burke from John Clary this week for $250.

Two lots in Leek's addition to Lakeside were purchased from the Duluth Realty company by W. S. Ford this week. The price paid was $525.

GREATEST FINANCIER OF MODERN TIMES IS DEAD

TWENTY WORKING DAYS
AND BUSY TIME AHEAD

Practically Every Bill of First Importance Will Be Decided.

Conference Committee on Initiative and Referendum Likely to Agree.

Action on Non-Partisan Primary Bill Is Still Problematical.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)
St. Paul, Minn., March 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are but twenty working days left of the 1913 session of the Minnesota legislature, and they must be very busy days indeed if the work remaining is cleaned up.

Of course it won't be cleaned up. It never is cleaned up. In spite of the mad rush of the last days of each session, when bills are shot through in a veritable flood, there always is a mass of measures left unfinished at the end, and there will be at least as many as usual left in the air at this session.

And at that, practically every measure of first importance will be decided one way or another, and that is not so usual. In fact it is conspicuously different from two years ago.

BEER MAKERS TO GO ON STRIKE

Expected Breweries at La Crosse Will Be Forced to Shut Down.

La Crosse, Wis., March 31.—That union employees of five La Crosse breweries will walk out tomorrow, causing a complete stoppage of the plants, was the outlook today when representatives of the Brewery Workers' and Beer Bottlers' unions went into a final conference with a committee of the employers. John Hader of Milwaukee, organizer of the brewing trades unions there, is here looking after the interests of the men. When the conference began it was said that prospects of a settlement were not favorable. An increase of about $2 a week in the wage scale is asked. The plants are now all highly unionized and working on an eight-hour day.

Another threatened strike was averted today when a settlement was effected between the painters and paper hangers and their employers. The scale is increased from 37½ cents an hour to 40 cents an hour, for an eight-hour day.

LAWRENCEBURG, IND.,
DEEP UNDER WATER

Practically Entire City Submerged, Over Fifty Buildings Washed Away.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., March 31.—Practically the whole city is under deep water today and more than fifty buildings are known to have been carried away. The Knippenburg Carriage factory burned during the night. Owing to the warnings of flood danger, however, it is not believed there will be any loss of life here.

During the fire the factory buildings were torn from their foundations and carried about five squares, by which time the buildings had burned to the water's edge.

The drinking water supply is plentiful for those refugees who fled to the highlands, but it is not believed there is enough food for more than two days.

STOCK MARKET
BEARS UP WELL

Death of J. P. Morgan Causes No Particular Nervousness.

New York, March 31.—The stock market bore up well under the news of Mr. Morgan's death. Opening prices showed declines which in almost no case exceeded a point. Supporting or case rallied the market quickly. Trading showed no evidence of nervousness.

There was no excitement or marked changes in prices during the opening session of the Consolidated exchange, which opens half an hour in advance of the stock exchange. Prices were from ¼ to ¾ under the London opening and ½ to 1½ below Saturday's closing here. The opening prices were:

Amalgamated Copper, 22½; American Smelting, 69½; St. Paul, 110½; Erie, 28; Reading, 160¼; Lehigh Valley, 156½; Union Pacific, 111½; Steel, 69½.

EMPLOYERS TO PAY FEES

House Favors Bill That Hits the Employment Agents.

Committee Does Not Find State Printing Charges Excessive.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house in committee of the whole this morning, after a somewhat extended debate, advanced to the calendar a bill by the house committee on labor, prohibiting employment agents from collecting fees for finding places for workers in occupations consisting wholly of manual labor. The bill was substituted by the committee for a more drastic measure introduced by Representative N. S. Hillman, the Socialist member from Lake county. It permits employers to pay fees, but not the workers. Mr. Hillman made an earnest speech for the bill, saying that the employment agent's fee is a vicious and unjust burden upon the workers. He claimed that it amounts to $175,000 a year in Duluth alone, and he charged that where employers place workers and close foremen in lumber camps and elsewhere, the employment agents should be paid, in consideration of a division of the fees, to keep men on the job. Representative Borgen of Duluth opposed the bill, saying that it would hurt the workers. He said that the employment agent's fee is a necessary part of the cost of doing business, and that the bill would be a burden on the workers.

Representative Campbell of Minneapolis said that petitions signed by the workers had come in in favor of the bill, including a number of employers of labor at Duluth.

Representative A. L. Warner of Duluth said that if the bill could be amended so the employer must pay the fees, but also so the workers would be compelled to stay long enough to work out the fee and fare, he would favor it.

Representative Hillman's motion that the bill be passed was defeated.

"MONEY" HEARING
CAUSED BREAKDOWN

Physician Says It Had Much to Do With Sickness of Morgan.

Rome, March 31.—Dr. M. Allen Starr of New York called into consultation over J. Pierpont Morgan's illness, at the time the financier's breakdown to emotion caused by the investigation carried out by the Pujo committee in Washington into the operations of the "money trust."

Members Surprised.
Washington, March 31.—Surprise was expressed by members of the "money trust" committee now in Washington that Mr. Morgan's breakdown should have been attributed by his physicians to the effects of the Pujo inquiry. When the banker appeared before the committee Dec. 18 and 19, he apparently was in good health, and his bearing was confident and self-possessed.

"Mr. Morgan seemed to enjoy the investigation," said Representative Hayes of California today. "He seemed entirely at ease and under no unusual strain."

EYES OF STATE WILL BE

CITY ELECTION TUESDAYWATER RISING
FAST AT CAIRO

Fifty-Four-Foot Stage Now Certain and Possibly Fifty-Six.

The Number of Workmen Strengthening Levee Has Been Doubled.

Cairo, Ill., March 31.—The stage of the Ohio river here at 8 o'clock was 52.3 feet and the river still is rising. The levee is 55 feet high and as it is weighted down with sandbags for two feet additional, there seems no immediate danger. Several companies of Illinois National Guard arrived this morning.

Fifty-four feet certain.
The local weather bureau announced today that a stage of fifty-four feet was certain and possibly fifty-six. It is believed that the levee can hold fifty-seven feet of water. Traffic on the interurban road out of here has been discontinued, as the water is over the tracks in some places between Cairo and Mounds City. Water is now sweeping over the top of the levee at Bird's Point, Mo., having waste a great section of Southeastern Missouri.

Workmen Doubled.
The number of workmen strengthening the Cairo levee has been doubled, and the city is taking every precaution to hold back the flood.

Four companies of the Illinois National Guard, these from Mount Vernon, Newton, Sullivan and Olney, already are in the city, under command of Col. Hyman of Effingham. Crowds of refugees from Southeast Missouri have been coming to Cairo all morning.

People Leave Louisiana.
Cincinnati, Ohio, March 31.—Floods in the Ohio river from its mouth to Marietta, Ohio, because of the great volume of water poured into it during the last week by tributaries, have caused thousands of people to leave the lowlands along the river and seek refuge on higher grounds.

The water today was still rising and at every city along the river heavy damage to property was reported. Railroad traffic has been impeded and many miles of track washed out.

In Illinois Governor Deneen has ordered 1,500 state troops to proceed by special trains to Cairo and Shawneetown for the purpose of patrolling the levees in the hope of preventing a break.

Preferential System of Voting Will Be New in Minnesota.

Charter Contains Many Interesting Experiments in Municipal Government.

"Anything May Happen" Is Common Forecast of the Outcome.

Duluth's first commission will be elected tomorrow. Out of a field of fifty-five candidates, five will be selected to take charge of the government and guide the city through the critical period of inauguration of the new system.

Duluth is setting a pace in municipal government. The new charter, which includes a new combination of features that have been tried singly in other cities, is a novel basis of government. With the people's rights safeguarded by the initiative, referendum and recall, the charter gives the commissioners a free hand to work out their own ideas on municipal government, subject to the approval of the people.

Tomorrow the preferential system of voting will be used for the first time in Minnesota. The eyes of students of election laws and municipal government in all parts of the state are on Duluth. The preferential system is being given a most thorough test here. The multiplicity of candidates, the variety of the interests involved, and the combinations that have been formed by indorsements give the voter an inducement to extend the influence of his ballot by the use of the second and third choice columns of the ballot.

On the proportion of voters using the extra columns and on the final result of the election will depend the judgment of people on the preferential system. Theoretically the system insures the election of majority candidates, or at least insures the defeat of candidates not acceptable to the great proportion of the people. "Our committee has now at its disposal all the food and clothing to meet the loss of the sufferers of Dayton.

"Money, however, is urgently required for putting our city in a condition to prevent the outbreak of serious disease and to rehabilitate thousands, many of whom have lost their homes entirely and all of whom have lost their households and personal effects.

AT THE HEIGHT OF HIS POWER
CONTROLLED NINE BILLIONS

New York, March 31.—John Pierpont Morgan started his business career half a century ago on the board of directors of a large maritime insurance company. He obtained the position through the influence of his wealthy father. For a year young Morgan attended the directors' meetings, but never opened his mouth, except to vote.

The president of the company told the elder Morgan that nothing could be done with his son, who seemed to take little interest in business. John Pierpont, however, all the time was laying his plans for his first serious consolidation, which when accomplished, established his standing in Wall Street as the only man who ever got the better of Jay Gould.

The president of the insurance company had mistaken tactfully for indolence. The sobriquet of "Sphinx" of Wall Street later applied to him. Morgan at first was believed to have been without business acumen, but later became the supreme head of the financiers of the American continent.

Controlled Nine Billions.
Morgan's control over men and money was the keynote of his life. Others, perhaps, were wealthier than Morgan, but he commanded his wealth and that of others. At the height of his power he is said to have controlled $9,000,000,000.

In addition to finance, art, literature, philanthropy and sport all came under his influence. His prestige was not confined to his own country—kings, emperors, and even the pope were wont to call him into consultation.

Mr. Morgan came from an old Puritan New England family which dates back in this country to 1635. He was born in wealth. His father, John Spencer Morgan, left him $10,000,000. Young Morgan also inherited important banking connections. J. S. Morgan had accumulated his fortune in the dry goods business with Levi F. Morgan and later as an associate of George Peabody, merchant, banker and philanthropist.

J. Pierpont Morgan was born April 17, 1837, in a brick cottage in Hartford, Conn. As a youngster his tendency to write poetry gave him the nickname "Pip." When he was 14, Morgan was sent to Boston to the (Continued on page 6, second column.)

J. P. MORGAN
SUCCUMBS IN ROME, ITALY

Death Comes at Noon Following Few Hours of Unconsciousness.

Unable to Assimilate Any of Nourishment Given By Physicians.

Severed All Connection With Business Before Sailing for Abroad.

New York, March 31.—J. Pierpont Morgan is dead. He died at 12:05 Rome time. This announcement was made by the officers of J. P. Morgan & Co. today.

Henry P. Davison, a member of the house of Morgan, made the announcement. He said merely that he had received a cable that the financier had passed away shortly after noon. Coincidentally with Mr. Morgan's death it became known that he had suffered a serious attack before his departure for Europe, but rallied so rapidly that it was not considered a forerunner to fatal illness and was known only to his most intimate friends.

For many years Mr. Morgan spent a considerable portion of his time abroad, but on this trip, for the first time, he severed all connection with business affairs and permitted his partners to shoulder all responsibility for their conduct. It was the first instance of his taking such a complete rest since he entered the banking business in this city, before the Civil war.

From prominent bankers in this city said this morning that they did not predict any decided unfavorable effect on the stock market by reason of Mr. Morgan's death. The reason of this, they explained, was that the recurrence of rumors of his serious illness had prepared the market for any possible eventuality, and enabled those engaged in market operations to prepare for just such a situation.

Death Approached Rapidly.
Rome, March 31.—J. P. Morgan, the American financier, died at five minutes past twelve o'clock, noon, today (Eas. m. New York time).

When the death of Mr. Morgan was known to be approaching rapidly, Prof. Bartanelli and Dr. Dixon forced Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, his son-in-law and daughter, and Miss Helen Hamilton, who had been in constant attendance, to leave the room.

Mr. Morgan toward the end showed that he was suffering internally only by a movement of his right hand. Otherwise he displayed no sign of vitality except by continuous heavy breathing.

Frequent bulletins were issued during the morning showing that his condition was gradually becoming worse and by 11 o'clock the physicians had given up all hope.

Unable to Assimilate Nourishment.
Mr. Morgan was unable to assimilate the artificial nourishment administered during the morning and his physical weakness was extreme. Heart tonics were injected, but these had no effect and for several hours before his death he was in a state of coma, unable to respond to any questions or to recognize any of those at his bedside.

One of his relatives, Mrs. Fitz Elston, wife of the Rev. William Fitz Elston, arrived from Cannes and was shown into the death chamber but her presence remained unknown to the dying man.

Beside the four trained nurses in attendance, Miss Helen Hamilton was of great assistance to the three physicians, Prof. Giuseppe Bastianelli, Dr. M. Allen Starr and Dr. George A. Dixon.

Pontenay, Ohio, March 31.—New York Central train No. 36, the Buffalo special from Buffalo to New York, jumped the track at Yonkers, near here, at 2:40 o'clock yesterday morning. Three sleepers, a buffet car and express car and the day coach went into the Mohawk river and were partially submerged, but all passengers escaped. Seven persons were slightly hurt. The accident was due to the weakening of the track by floods.

NEW YORK'S CANAL.
Christian Science Monthly: Comparatively few persons have given serious attention to the fact that a great barge canal, at an estimated total cost of $101,000,000 is being constructed across Central and Western New York state. This great waterway will waterway with its locks, water gates, spillways and highway bridges winds across the state from the Hudson to Tonawanda, giving access to the old Erie canal, Oswego canal, Lake Champlain, St. Lawrence and Great Lakes, opening a grand highway from the seaboard and the first city of the Union. When one considers that the canal extends, as the crow flies, 352 miles across the state, and with the branches to Lake Champlain and Lake Ontario, has a total length of 463 miles, it will be recognized as one of the largest engineering feats in canal construction ranking second only to the Panama canal. There has been no end of difficulties met with, such as quicksands and floods, and frequently bridges had to be built to make the work possible. Benjamin Birkle, dead in Hopkinton, Del., supposedly poor, really possessed $250,000 in money and land.

HOW TO MARK THE PREFERENTIAL BALLOT

The first injunction to be given to the voter, that his vote may certainly be counted, is:

Vote for one first choice for mayor, two first choices for long-term commissioner and two first choices for short-term commissioner.

This is the first and foremost instruction for the voter to remember. The use of the second and third choice columns is not compulsory and mistakes will not invalidate the ballot, but failure to vote for two long-term candidates and two short-term candidates will invalidate the ballot.

The man who marks only the first choice will not have the greatest possible influence to his vote. The second instruction to the voter is:

Vote second choice for only one candidate for mayor, two candidates for long-term commissioner and two candidates for short-term commissioner. If a mistake is made in the second column—for instance if a man votes second choice for three candidates for long-term commissioner—he will invalidate the second choice column for that office, but the remainder of his ballot will be counted.

The third injunction is:

Vote in the third column for every candidate whom you wish to support. One may vote for two or three or five candidates for any office in the third column on his ballot. There is no restriction on the number, except the number of candidates on the ballot. Do not vote more than one choice for any one candidate.

If a voter marks the first and second, or the first and third, or any two columns opposite one candidate's name, only the vote in the highest column will stand. The other will not be counted.

FOR THE VOTER WHO HAS NOT REGISTERED

The voter who has not registered may vote tomorrow, if he has not already obtained the necessary affidavit blanks from the city clerk, there will be a supply at his polling place and the election judges will be empowered to take acknowledgements without charge.

The unregistered voter must file an affidavit, setting forth his qualifications for voting, and it must be supported by the affidavits of two real estate owners, residing in his precinct. Upon compliance with those conditions, he may cast his vote.

SAYS MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP IS ISSUE

"Persistent" declarations have been made that municipal ownership is not the issue of the campaign, said William Bernard, candidate for short term commissioner, this morning.

"It is pointed out that the question was settled by a vote of the people. The election was held a year or more ago. If the question was settled why has it been deadlocked and at a standstill in the city council for the better part of the year? If it was to the interest of the electric company to block progress in the city council by any means at its command, why will it not be just as much to the company to control the commissioner which takes charge of the city April 14, if that is possible? The Edison company has not been asleep on the job nor will it be.

While the municipal ownership of the light plant is a paramount issue, many other matters of vital importance have to be considered. The new commissioners will have a big task on their hands. They will have to proceed coolly and always keep in close touch with the people. As soon as the results are known the commissioners should begin holding their meetings in order that they may proceed more rapidly after they have taken official charge. Considerable preliminary work will have to be done and a great deal of routine must be disposed of before the commissioners can address themselves and make the big problems which will confront them."

Mr. Bernard said that he has not made a speaking campaign, but he feels confident of the result, stating that his candidacy for short term commissioner has met with even more approval and commendation than he had anticipated.

HOW BALLOTS MAY BE SPOILED

"Voters should not be unduly alarmed over the complexity of the preferential ballot," said City Attorney Carmichael today.

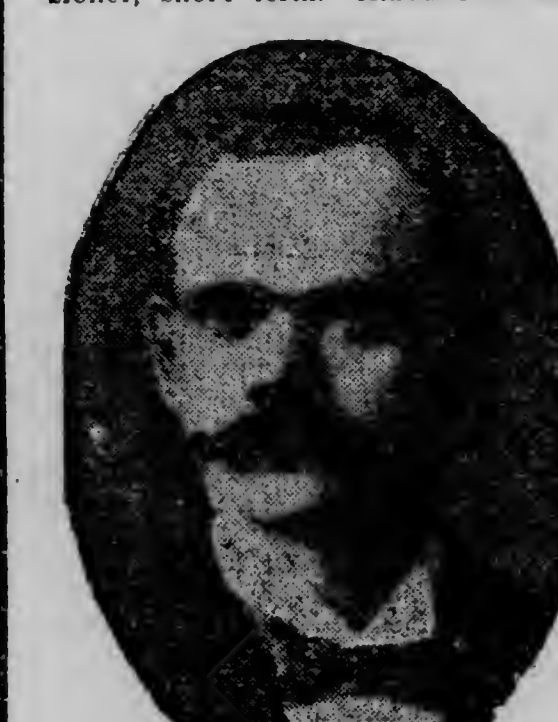

"The only way to spoil the ballot is a voter's failure to vote for four first choices for long term commissioners and two first choice votes for short term commissioners. Such an error in no way affects the ballot in regard to special municipal judge and assistant municipal judge."

SILBERSTEIN'S LAST WORD

"Throughout this campaign," said Bernard Silberstein, candidate for mayor, yesterday, "I have tried to keep before the voters the main issue, that is the main issue, that is 'good government,' in the fullest sense of the word."

"It is inclusive of the issues of municipal ownership, efficiency, economy and the social evil, all of which are important, and all of which make to make a speaking campaign. There must be combined with these, however, the essential business efficiency, economy or we can not hope to realize all the benefits of the commission form of government."

My interest in the city's affairs did not begin only when I was elected to office. As a business man and property holder my interest in municipal affairs began many years before that and the fact that have held office and with it held office again has not changed the complexion of my interest.

Alfred Jacques and Watson S. Moore for the Municipal Ownership league at the Army.
Polish Citizens' club at the Polish hall, Fourth avenue east and Fourth street. All candidates invited.

There will be one more burst of oratory tonight—or several bursts in various parts of the city—and then the fate of the candidates for the commission will be in the hands of the voters.

Nearly all of the candidates have carried their speaking campaign right up to the last day. Some closed Saturday night, but nearly all will get an opportunity to speak somewhere tonight and they will avail themselves of it to get in a final word.

The campaign has been short, but more political oratory has been spilled than in any municipal campaign for many years. For the last three weeks, at least, there has been at least one meeting every night, and some nights there were a half dozen meetings. No voter has any excuse but his own disinclination for not having seen and heard the candidates.

The attendance at political meetings has been unusually large and an unusual degree of interest has been shown. It is expected that all candidates who speak tonight will have good crowds and thus will be compensated for their last efforts.

The polls will open tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock and will close at 9 o'clock tomorrow evening.

W. I. Prince will close his campaign tonight with two meetings, the first at Columbia hall in the West end, and the second at Dormedy hall in West Duluth.
P. E. Dowling will speak at Lakeside, and he promises to furnish a few sensations for the detection of the residents of the suburb who gather to hear him.

David H. Day will speak at the Woodmen's hall in the West end, and he invites other candidates for mayor who have no speaking dates to speak from the same platform with him.
The other candidates for mayor have announced no speaking dates, and nearly all of them are expected to visit the Polish hall to speak to the Polish Citizens' club, which will hold an open meeting.

The campaign of the Municipal Ownership league will be wound up at the Army tonight, with Judge Alfred Jacques and Watson S. Moore as the speakers.

Merritt Is Confident.

Leonard Merritt, candidate for long term commissioner, says that he feels confident of success. He has not had time to campaign, and has conducted a clean campaign and he believes that this will win.

Betting Odds.

The betting odds posted downtown shifted around a little today, but the bookmakers are still backing the same candidates. They offer even money on Prince for mayor, two to one on Young for long term commissioner, even money on McCormick for long term commissioner and two to one on Farrell for short term commissioner. They are backing no other candidate for short term commissioner, odds being against the election of all candidates except the four who are made favorites.

BOMBAKER DIES. Confesses to Sending Infernal Machines Which Killed Two Persons.

New York, March 31.—Henry Klett, the Bronx bomber, died Saturday at Fordham hospital from injuries received when a bomb on which he was working blew up a week ago. Before he died, according to hospital authorities, he confessed that he made and sent the bombs that killed Helen Taylor and Mrs. Magdalena Alvarez and the bomb that blew up a year ago in the home of John J. O'Connell.

Taft Leaves for New Haven.
Annapolis, Md., March 31.—Former President William H. Taft, who has been at his winter cottage here since March 1, left at 10:30 yesterday afternoon for New Haven, Conn., where he will take up his duties as professor of law at Yale university. With him were Mrs. Taft and Master Charles Taft. The latter will accompany Mr. Taft to New York.

TRAIN GOES INTO RIVER; PASSENGERS ESCAPE.

Pontiac, Ohio, March 31.—New York Central train No. 35, the Buffalo special from Buffalo to New York, jumped the track at Yosts, near here, at 1:10 o'clock yesterday morning. Three sleepers, a buffet car and express car, and the day coach went into the Mohawk river and were partially submerged, but all passengers escaped. Seven persons were slightly hurt. The accident was due to the weakening of the track by floods.

NEW YORK'S CANAL.
Christian Science Monthly: Comparatively few persons have given serious attention to the fact that a great large canal, at an estimated total cost of $100,000,000, is being constructed across Central and Western New York state. This great waterway, which will be the longest in the world, with its locks, water gates, spillways and highway bridges which cross the state from the Hudson to Tonawanda, giving access to the old Erie canal, Oswego canal, Lake Champlain, St. Lawrence and Great Lakes, opening a great highway from the seaboard and the first city of the Union. When one considers that the canal extends as far as the crown lies, 353.5 miles across the state, and with the bridges to Lake Champlain and Lake Ontario, has a total length of 463.5 miles, it will be recognized as one of the largest engineering feats in canal construction, ranking second only to the Panama canal. There has been no end of difficulties met with, such as underground and floods and frequently bridges had to be built to make the work possible.

HOW TO MARK THE PREFERENTIAL BALLOT

The first injunction to be given to the voter, that his vote may certainly be counted, is:

Vote for one first choice for mayor, two first choices for long-term commissioner and two first choices for short-term commissioner.

This is the first and foremost instruction for the voter to remember. The use of the second and third choice columns is not compulsory and mistakes will not invalidate the ballot, but failure to vote for two long-term candidates and two short-term candidates will invalidate the ballot.

The man who marks only the first choice will not give the greatest possible influence to his vote. The second instruction is:

Vote second choice for only one candidate for mayor, two candidates for long-term commissioner and two candidates for short-term commissioner.

If a mistake is made in the second column—for instance, if a man votes second choice for three candidates for long-term commissioner—he will invalidate the second choice column for that office, but the remainder of his ballot will be counted.

The third injunction is:

Vote in the third column for every candidate whom you wish to support.

One may vote for two or three or five candidates for any office in the third column on his ballot. There is no restriction on the number, except the number of candidates on the ballot. Do not vote more than one choice for any one candidate.

If a voter marks the first and second, or the first and third, or any two columns opposite one candidate's name, only the vote in the highest column will stand. The other will not be counted.

FOR THE VOTER WHO HAS NOT REGISTERED

The voter who has not registered may vote tomorrow. If he has not already obtained the necessary affidavit blanks from the city clerk, there will be a supply at his polling place and the election judges will be empowered to take acknowledgments without charge.

The unregistered voter must file an affidavit, setting forth his qualifications for voting, and it must be supported by the affidavits of two real estate owners, residing in his precinct. Upon compliance with these conditions, he may cast his vote.

SAYS MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP IS ISSUE

"Persistent declarations have been made that municipal ownership is not the issue of the campaign," said William Bernard, candidate for short term commissioner, this morning.

"It is pointed out that the question was settled by a vote of the people. The election was held a year ago. If the question was settled why has it been decided and at a standstill in the city council for the better part of the year? If it was to the interest of the electric company to block progress in the city council by any means at its command, why has it not been just as much to the company to control the commission which takes charge of the city April 1, if that is possible? The Edison company has not been asleep on the job nor will it be."

"While the municipal ownership, or the light plant is a paramount issue, many other matters of vital importance have to be considered. The new commissioners will have a big task on their hands. They will have to proceed coolly and surely, always keeping in close touch with the people. As soon as the results are known, the commissioners should begin holding their meetings in order that they may proceed more rapidly after they take official charge. Considerable preliminary work will have to be done and a great deal of routine must be disposed of before the commission can adjust itself and tackle the big problems which will confront them."

Mr. Bernard said he does not intend to make a speaking campaign but that he feels confident of the result, stating that his candidacy for short term commissioner has met with even more approval and commendation than he had anticipated.

HOW BALLOTS MAY BE SPOILED

"Voters should not be unduly alarmed over the complexity of the preferential ballot," said City Attorney Carmichael today.

"The only way to spoil the ballot is a voter's failure to vote for four first choices for commissioner (two for long term and two for short term.) If a ballot does not contain two first choices for long term commissioners and two first choices for short term commissioners the ballot is void only as to commissioners. Such an error in no way affects the ballot in regard to mayor, special municipal judge and assistant municipal judge."

SILBERSTEIN'S LAST WORD

"Throughout this campaign," said Bernard Silberstein, candidate for mayor, yesterday, "I have tried to keep in the foreground what in my opinion is the main issue. That is 'good government' in the fullest sense of the word."

Inclusive of the issues of municipal ownership, law enforcement, and the social evil, all of which are important, but which will not make toward good government. There must be combined with these, however, essential business organization and efficiency, or we can not hope to realize all the benefits of the commission form of government."

PAID POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.
Inserted by Frank Jordan in behalf of himself, candidate for commissioner, short term. Amount to be paid, $25.00.

Much has been said of the necessity of obtaining commissioners at the election to be held tomorrow, who are possessed of business efficiency and a knowledge of municipal affairs and necessities.

If you think that seven years experience as councilman, two terms as president of that body and a reputation for care and efficiency in dealing with the city's business, added to which is the interest of a property holder of twenty-six years' standing form proper credentials for fitness, then I solicit your vote.

My interest in the city's affairs did not begin only when I was elected to office. As a business man and property holder I have been interested in municipal affairs from the very beginning. I have held office and wish to hold office again for the changed complexion of that interest.

I stand for all that is progressive in the city's affairs, and I have held office and wish to hold office again for the changed complexion of that interest.

Your vote may elect me, I feel that I am entitled to ask it.

Brainerd's Election Tuesday.
Brainerd, Minn., March 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brainerd's city election tomorrow will be a contest between a slate of independent candidates and the Socialist party.

MISSIONARY TEA.

Women Raise Money for "Duluth Hall."

Miss Emily F. Hartwell of Fochow, China, gave an interesting talk on missionary work there this afternoon at a tea given at the home of Mrs. W. W. Sanford, 2122 East First street, in her honor.

The affair was arranged under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the "Pilgrim" Congregational church, which society has raised a fund of nearly $250 which will be sent to Fochow to be used toward the completion of a new mission home there. The reception hall of the new home will be known as "Duluth hall" and the staircase of the building will be the Woodworth memorial staircase in memory of the late W. S. Woodbridge of this city.

Miss Valborg Gunderson played a violin solo with her usual charm and grace and responded to the applause. Miss Annabelle McLeod also pleased the guests with a vocal solo. Assisting Mrs. Sanford in receiving the guests were Mrs. C. N. Thorpe, Mrs. E. A. Drayton, Mrs. C. D. Wallace in a handsome Chinese costume, and Mrs. W. W. Johnson presided, assisted by Mrs. David Davis, Miss Beatrice Webster and Miss Alice Gow.

DULUTH'S OWN STAR RETURNS HOME

MISS ADELAIDE THURSTON.

"Oh, I'm so glad to get home," said Miss Adelaide Thurston, Duluth's own little star, who is in Duluth for a three-nights' engagement in her play and who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. E. Parker, 1510 East Superior street. "But do you know there is just one disappointment for me. I did so want to skate and I had my mackinaw and skating shoes right near the top of my trunk so I could have just a little fun on the ice and I had there when I was called to the stage. I am going to call on me for this afternoon I am resting up for my first performance."

"Really, you know, I wouldn't care to go into vaudeville," she said when asked about the number of stars who are taking up that work. "Some players like it, but most of them go into it for the money and not for the fascination. One can't seem to get into the spirit of the play for just a few minutes and I certainly prefer the good play to a vaudeville stunt. The moving picture companies are taking a lot of the good players, for they offer fabulous salaries and all expenses paid. Many of the great stars have rushed in but most of them have made a perfect fun-fest, and reflected much credit on the abilities of Mrs. Ernest Lachmund and Mrs. Stephen H. Jones as managers."

A pretty setting of a trolleed garden wall overlooking with rose bushes made an effective background, and every one of the stunts was heartily applauded. The play will finish her present tour in the spring and will go to her home at Murray Hill, N. Y., for part of the summer. A new play is being written for her at present which she expects to work out during the late summer and try early in the fall.

Her many friends and admirers who have not had an opportunity of seeing her professionally for four years will be glad of this opportunity to welcome her to her home city.

STUDENTS' FROLIC OF THE MATINEE MUSICAL PROVIDES FUN IN PLENTY FOR SPECTATORS

AGNES ALEXANDER AND CHARLENE BAGLEY In Classical Dance.

ELIZABETH BARTHE AND SUE BAILEY In Minuet.

Associate, active and student members of the Matinee Musicals enjoyed the students' frolic which was held Saturday afternoon at the parlors of the Endion M. E. church, which proved to be a perfect fun-fest, and reflected much credit on the abilities of Mrs. Ernest Lachmund and Mrs. Stephen H. Jones as managers.

A pretty setting of a trolleed garden wall overlooking with rose bushes made an effective background, and every one of the stunts was heartily applauded.

One of the features of the afternoon was an impromptu entrance of a "dainty lady" into the audience, who entertained with her antics, and a jig by her later was a scream.

A "Jimmy Valentine" burlesque, led by Madeline Miller, was the first number on the program, followed by a Russian dance by John Magie, who was wonderfully spry and effective in the number.

A dainty little minuet by tiny little Sue Bailey of the "Pilgrim" Congregational church, and a classic Grecian dance by Miss Charlene Bagley and Miss Agnes Alexander was grace and charm itself and was roundly applauded. All of these dances were under the direction of Prof. L. C. McLeod.

Little Miss Katherine McLeod in Highland costume danced a sprightly Highland fling like a little animated feather, to bagpipe music played by Kenneth Macgregor.

One of the hits of the afternoon was "Trova-tore," sung by Miss McDonald and Miss Loretta O'Gorman.

Anthony and Cleopatra were cleverly burlesqued by Miss Virginia Harrison and Miss Elva Smith, who also put on another little sketch, Mrs. Greylock's account of the play.

A midget dance as done by Miss Mary Bradbury and Miss Elva Smith, brought forth peals of laughter, and the closing number a kitchen symphony.

phony was directed by Miss Marjorie Morrow and the following took part, Miss Margaret McKindley, Miss Elizabeth Stephenson, Miss Marie Christensen, Miss Perle Reynolds, Miss Carolyn Marshall and Miss Virginia Harrison.

After the program tea was served by the Misses Max Bradbury, Margaret Hoy, Madeline Miller, Dorothy Cronday, Mary McGonagle, Helen Edwards, Marion Dight, Eugene Le Richeux, Elizabeth Horr, and Alice Cowen.

MONEY NEEDED IN CHINA

Missionary Says Christian Missions Are in Great Need of Funds--Praises Yat Sun and the Chinese Republic and Makes Plea for Support for New Government.

"We are the pickets, you are the army, and unless the army gives us more active support than ever before the pickets will fail," said Miss Emily Hartwell, missionary to China, in an address at the Pilgrim Congregational church yesterday afternoon.

Miss Hartwell has labored with the Chinese for many years as representative of the Women's Missionary Board of the Interior, whose headquarters are at Chicago. Miss Hartwell is herself a native of China, her father having gone to that country as a missionary in 1852.

The speaker displayed the emblem of the new Chinese republic, a banner of five parallel stripes, red, yellow, blue, white and black, each of the colors representing one of the great Mongolian races embraced in the old Chinese empire and admitted to equal participation in the affairs of the new republic.

Miss Hartwell declared that

For a quarter of a century the public have shown their confidence in French & Bassett Co. Add to that, the quality of merchandise we offer and you have a combination that cannot be excelled.

We point with pride to our display of 1913 merchandise. This wonderful showing, devoted entirely to samples, covers nearly 70,000 square feet of floor space. Every type of furnishing for your home is shown here and at prices to meet the demand of any pocketbook.

Our warehouse on Michigan street has nearly 32,000 square feet of floor space. It is there we keep our duplicate stock and sold goods which we are holding for delivery. A spur of the Northern Pacific track at the receiving room door enables us to unload our cars with a minimum amount of handling. Every means has been used in this establishment to reduce overhead expense to the smallest amount and at the same time to add to our service—result, lower prices.

A careful consideration of these facts should clearly convince you that this is the place to invest in home furnishings. Let us have an opportunity to show you our offerings. Let quality and assortment combined with prices that are right influence your buying.

Yat Sun, the provisional president of the republic, and other Chinamen who founded the new government had been most broad-minded and generous in giving equal rights to all the races. He declared that among the great men of the world, Yat Sun would be enrolled in history as the peer of all the others.

Plea for Support.
Miss Hartwell's address was a plea for support, not only for the missionary board that she represented, but also for the new Chinese government and the Chinese people in general. She declared that the new government was deeply indebted to the missionaries. Yet the work of these missionaries was sadly handicapped for want of funds. At Fochow, where she is located, the missionaries had no homes of their own. She declared that they were entitled to have a roof over their heads, a home that they could call their own. She said a vastly greater amount of work could be accomplished in the way of teaching the Chinese if the funds were only on hand to furnish the means. The Chinese were eager to learn and should be encouraged. If only the necessary means were provided the missionaries could multiply their work many fold, not only teaching the Chinese how to live better but making teachers out of them to instruct other Chinese.

She spoke of one portion of China, where it had been the custom for families who had girls for whom they could not properly provide to draw them in their infancy. The Christian missionaries had taught these people that it was wrong to put them to death. The result was that girls, instead of being drowned in infancy were allowed to grow up and in many cases were forced into lives of prostitution.

"It is now our duty," asked the speaker, "to teach these girls how to make a proper, respectable living?"

Miss Hartwell told some of the dangers and hardships that the missionaries had to face. Women missionaries went into homes to teach the people in districts that were infected with cholera and many other contagious diseases. The diseases were spread rapidly by rats and flea brick houses, with walls that rats could not enter, were the only safe kind of houses in such communities.

Says America Has Duty.
The speaker said America ought to come to the rescue of China. Other powers did not wish to have the Chinese people succeed. The republic was practically bankrupt. It could not have the customs revenues because these were in the hands of foreign powers, who were thus collecting indemnity for the outbreaks of 1900. The great powers of Europe were looking for a chance to seize upon Chinese territory. They were watching for a pretext.

Miss Hartwell said that during a recent conference at London, representatives of the new government, the British representatives proposed that the new government should get its revenues by making a monopoly of the opium traffic. The Chinese government refused to do any such thing. She also said British merchants had stored at Shanghai and Hongkong $50,000,000 worth of opium, and were watching for a chance to put it out on the Chinese market and raise money on it.

Miss Hartwell said that she herself as well as many other missionaries of the Central and Southern provinces of China would have been killed during the outbreaks of 1900. If it had not been for the noble self-sacrifice of two Chinese officials, when their enormous dowager sent forth the word to kill all foreigners, these officers published the order as one to protect all foreigners. The missionaries were saved, but the two Chinamen were beheaded.

Miss Hartwell said China looked on America as its best friend, owing to

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Love Makes of Woman a Good Home Maker.

"College girls know too much to make good home makers," recently declared a New York woman, herself the mother of a Barnard college girl. Of course she means that they think that they know more than other women, their mothers included. And, of course, there is no use denying that girls in college and those just graduated often times do place a value upon themselves not at all proportionate to their real importance. Perhaps some are inclined to look down on women less favored with educational advantages, no matter what their accomplishments may be. But not all so feel their importance, or look down upon those who have lesser educations.

If a girl stopped short at the end of her college career and did not progress a step after its doors were closed behind her, she might not compare very favorably with other women as a home maker. But a college education generally leads a girl out upon a broad avenue of endeavor where matters pertaining to the betterment of home and children are largely considered.

As far as actual experience with the ways of the world and the practicality of plans untied go, the young woman just out of college and the girl just out of the high school stand nearly on a par, except that the former has more power behind her once she sets it applied properly. Other things being equal, the former should make the better home maker than her less educated sister. But the "other things" are, of course, not always equal, for some women are born home makers. However, knowledge, even of books, is undoubtedly an aid to home making, for contrary to some folks' belief, it takes a well grounded and well rounded woman to make the twentieth century home a success.

The average college-bred woman, while possessed at first of fads and a lot of ignorance and red tape of which she sooner or later divests herself, gives the same promise of becoming a good home maker that the business woman does—provided her college education has been one deserving of the name. If she is serious, and studies for any purpose, she will come upon many vital facts through the channel of education that the business woman learns through contact with all sorts of people.

For that matter, except for the freaks of women in creation, almost any woman who loves a man well enough will be a good home maker. It is her instinct to do so, and she will want to follow it.

DULUTH—SUPERIOR—VIRGINIA

PLAYGROUND FAILURES.
Charles F. Weller in The Survey. In a city of 130,000 inhabitants I saw recently an example of American needs and opportunities which are important but little understood. Four years ago the city council appropriated $7,000 for playgrounds. But there was so little understanding of what constitutes a real playground that it became a "recreation movement" backward, growing weaker year by year. Finally, the original friends of the movement said, a year ago: "The latest appropriation (only $2,500) is the last that Exville will ever make for playgrounds; we have tried them and found them unsatisfactory."

How many Exvilles are there? Altogether 333 American cities were active in playground or recreation movements last year. But only 285 had supervised playgrounds. The other 248, at least, are in danger of auto-vaccination—of having such inadequate, unsatisfactory playgrounds that the people will become discouraged and the development of effective recreational facilities will be prevented or postponed. What is the answer? Exactly what saved Exville. A field secretary of the Playground and Recreation Association of America gave ten weeks of competent service. He gave Exville first, an understanding of her own needs; second, a vision of what a modern recreation movement means in the most successful cities; third, a program—practicable, progressive, irrefragable. The very first expenditure will be for a commissioner or director of recreation to select and train play leaders, to exercise a growing influence over all forms of recreation; in short, to do for leisure time what the superintendent of schools does for the hours of formal education. Like a great but growing tide, the playground movement is sweeping over America. It is too rapid, may be said. Yes, but why? Because it meets needs which people are becoming keenly conscious. Because it answers some of the strongest social instincts in men's mind and hearts.

TOO MANY MEN ARE THOMASES

Rev. Gebauer Says World Is Full of Chronic Doubtters.

"People of today are prone to be doubting Thomases," declared Rev. George H. Gebauer, pastor of the First Unitarian church, in his sermon yesterday morning. He spoke on "The Experience of Doubt." The pastor declared that there were too many who resorted to the Missouri "show me" attitude and were not satisfied with anything less than absolute proof before agreeing to the truth of anything.

Among other things, the pastor said: "We are prone to doubt. When his friends tell him about the wonderful occurrences he says to them, 'Not except I should see in his hands the prints of the nails and put my hand into his side, will I believe.' This should not be so. Blessed are those who find their spiritual life through signs and wonders, but twice blessed those who need no special signs who believe in God because they believe in themselves. Blessed are those who can see the power and the love of God manifested in the ordinary things of the day, in the budding leaves, in the sunshine, in the flowing river, in the heart of man."

"To possess the consciousness of God as an ever-present reality, to feel every moment of our lives that we are eternal and the love of God manifest in the ordinary things of the day, this means we have attained the sonship of God."

Send for the Cook's Book
By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill
It's FREE

Our instructions to the famous editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine were: "Get up a book of recipes of the things people like best. Find the best way to make and bake each one. Then write it out so plainly that even an inexperienced housewife can't have a failure."

"The Cook's Book" was the result. Some of the 90 recipes were originated, many of them improved upon, and all were personally tested by this best known authority on cooking in America, and she tells so clearly how she made everything that one cannot go astray.

While some of the cakes and pastry are elaborate enough for any occasion, the recipes are all thoroughly practical and call for no expensive and unusual ingredients. In addition to telling how to make them, the book is beautifully illustrated in colors showing how to arrange and serve the dishes appetizingly.

More than half a million of "The Cook's Book" are now in use in American households. Yet the demand is constantly increasing. Many send for two or three at a time to give to friends or young housekeepers. Don't depend on borrowing one from a neighbor—have one of your own.

How to Get "The Cook's Book"

In every 25c can of K.C. Baking Powder is packed a colored certificate. Send us one of these certificates (paste it on a postal card if you like) with your name and address plainly written, and "The Cook's Book" will be mailed free of charge. Only one book for each certificate.

Chronic Appendicitis.

Many people have had, during their lifetime, severe attacks of colic, which were relieved by the application of hot fomentations and internal use of a purgative. No doubt many of these attacks were due to nothing but intestinal indigestion, but in some occasional very severe ones, which it is not hard to recall, was much more likely to be localized peritonitis and the most frequent cause of this, especially when located in the right lower abdomen, is appendicitis, or inflammation of the appendix. In obtaining a history from a patient suffering from chronic appendicitis, it is just such attacks which must be taken into account by the physician, for without a history of such attacks the chronic disease is almost impossible to discover. However, if a person has been troubled with a chronic dyspepsia, mild neurosthenic symptoms, and no suffer from occasional attacks of colic centered in the right lower abdomen, with accompanying obstinate constipation, there should always be a suspicion aroused of chronic appendicitis.

The appendix is a relic of a large caecum which, it is supposed, our early ancestors required for the complete digestion and absorption of the coarse fibrous foods upon which they subsisted. It is now an organ of no function whatever, and having no function whatever, it is peculiarly susceptible to infections of all kinds; and when they are of a low grade they are not removed by the body's natural way of performing its operation of expelling the contents of the useless organ which is a menace to the body's health. It is, therefore, to nature, however, is fraught with so much danger to the individual, that a prompt removal of this pesky little organ, whenever either chronic or acute inflammation is discovered. It has been said, not without reason, that a person carrying an infected appendix in his belly is in the same position as the man constantly carrying a stick of dynamite in his pocket; but, in reality, his position is much worse, for the dynamite does not harm unless accidentally exploded, while the diseased appendix contributes all the time to the minor ailments of stomach, bowel and nervous system. These ailments are a considerable factor in reducing general efficiency, and at times there is danger of some accident occurring which will set off the explosion; and when the cure, unless prompt surgical aid is at hand, the chances of saving life are slim. By an acute infection on the soil of inflammation, and the danger from operation is so slight during chronic appendicitis, when conducted with the aid of an acute attack, that both physicians and surgeons, and students of preventive medicine join in the advice—"Take it out."

That, nevertheless, is often hard to convince the owner of such a treasure that to part with it on the operating table would make for better health, increased safety to life, and greater general efficiency. However, if the patient, and it is a fool-hardy person who will not heed the warnings of those who know the danger of delay, as well as the comparative safety in removal during the quiet stage.

Questions and Answers.

Distilled Water.
"Constant Reader" asks: How is distilled water made and what are its properties? REPLY:
Distilled water is simply water converted into steam by heat, and then condensed by means of a coil of pipe kept cool by a cold water jacket. The condensed steam which drops into the container is distilled water, and is free from all substances which may have been in solution. It is also sterile, when collected without contamination. The useful ingredients of water, which are lost through this process, are inorganic salts and oxygen. The latter is, however, reintroduced by a process of aeration, by the large manufacturers of distilled water for drinking purposes.

Distilled water should not be looked upon as being always sterile or free from germs; for, although germ free when made, and incapable of supporting germ life for any length of time, it is not always handled in a manner that would insure germ freedom.

Wet and Dry Bulb Thermometers.
I, W. writer, have made a wet bulb thermometer and have it hanging beside an ordinary instrument in the sitting room; and I find that when the air temperature is at 68 deg., the wet bulb thermometer only shows 52 deg. What would the relative humidity be in this case and is it sufficient?

In the case you mention, if the thermometers are accurate instruments, both health and life are in danger. Relative humidity would be 31 per cent. This is much too low for a healthful atmosphere. Until you get the wet bulb to show about 55 deg., with the dry bulb at 68 deg., then please reduce the temperature to say 65, and evaporate sufficient water to make the wet bulb show 55. This will make comfortable and healthy inside air.

Sexual Weakness.
L. K. writes: I am troubled since 8 years old with sexual weakness. I am 23½ years old. If you do not wish to answer, please advise me then please write me the address of an honest and reliable physician who abides in Duluth or Superior and who could cure me.

REPLY:
You are worrying too much over sexual matters and can cure yourself by forgetting about such things and leading a healthful life, with outdoor exercise, healthy exercise, moderation in eating and drinking, frequent bathing and a cold sponge or plunge every morning. Whatever you do, do not consult any of the so-called specialists. These troubles, they are after your money only. Any physician who is a member of the County Medical Society, is reliable, and will give you any extra advice you may need.

Irritation of Nerves.
L. L. writes: I have a burning sensation just below my breasts and between my arms just below my shoulder blades. It comes over me about once a week and lasts for a few minutes from fifteen minutes to an hour. Will you please tell me the cause of it and how to cure it and how to find happiness.

REPLY:
The meager information given in your letter would not permit of even a guess. The sensation is in the skin, it is likely due to some functional nervous disturbance, produced by overwork, or by some other cause of the body. On the other hand, it may be a sign of some disease, however, only likely to affect one side of the body. Both sides are affected at the same time, the first is the more likely explanation.

FISHERMEN INDIGNANT

Say They Were Not Given Fair Treatment at Hearing.

Protest Against Closed Season for Trout on Lake Superior.

The commercial fishermen who attended the meeting of the joint committee from the legislatures of Minnesota and Wisconsin at the courthouse on Saturday do not feel satisfied with the treatment they received. They held a meeting by themselves after the committee meeting was through and appointed a committee to draw up suitable resolutions which are given below. W. D. Tomlin, one of their number, who was elected secretary of their meeting, writes The Herald that:

"The fishermen feel incensed. They consider that the meeting was not a square deal. Sam Fullerton and his ilk just abused us as much as they could. AID TAKEN TO TWO SETTLERS

The family of John Kenecy, a settler living ten miles north of Cook, which was burned out in a fire last week, losing almost everything, will be supplied with material with which to build another home, according to R. D. McKerscher, humane agent, who has returned from a trip to the northern part of the county where he investigated a number of cases of distress. Temporary relief has been given the Kenecy family. The only property saved from the fire was a cow. The humane agent also visited the home of Michael Rom, the settler who held the fire insurance policy, and stated that his family of six children were in destitute circumstances and were threatened in his letter to kill himself if aid was not forthcoming. Mr. McKerscher took medicine, provisions and fuel out to him. Rom lives twenty-five miles from Cook.

Counterfeits.

Read what one of the GREATEST NEWSPAPERS IN AMERICA has to say on this subject:

"The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trademark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents, and mothers in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, under whose supervision it has been manufactured continuously for over thirty years.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Letters from Prominent Druggists addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Conger Bros. of St. Paul, Minn., say: "Fletcher's Castoria is certainly full of merit and worthy of recommendation."

C. G. A. Loder, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "For 20 years we have sold Fletcher's Castoria and are pleased to state that it has given universal satisfaction."

The Scholz Drug Co., of Denver, Colo., says: "Fletcher's Castoria has surely become a household word. Seemingly every family where there are children uses it."

Hoagland & Mansfield, of Boston, Mass., say: "We have nothing but good to say about your Castoria and we do not hesitate to give it our unqualified endorsement."

Riker's Drug Stores, of New York City, say: "Fletcher's Castoria is one of the oldest and most popular preparations in our stores. We have nothing but good to say about it."

Wolf-Wilson Drug Co., of St. Louis, Mo., says: "Of the thousands of patent medicines for which we have demand there are a very few of them that we can conscientiously recommend and your Castoria is included in this few."

D. R. Dyche & Co., of Chicago, Ill., say: "The increasing demand for your Castoria shows that a discriminating public is not slow to seek out a remedy of merit and once convinced that it does all and even more than claimed they do not hesitate to recommend it to their friends."

The Owl Drug Co., of San Francisco, Cal., says: "We have always been a believer in the 'original man protection' and have been particularly never to sell anything but the genuine and original Castoria (Fletcher's). We have many calls every day for this article from people who say they would not be without it in their homes."

In Use For Over 30 Years.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Yesterday morning, "should not be thought of so much as a preacher like Fletcher, Brooks or Spurgeon," as a righteous statesman like Gladstone, Lincoln or Washington. His message of righteousness was a political message. When he pictured a high grade citizen and indicated the impregnable defense of a clean character, he was talking to the politicians of Judah and to the city fathers of Jerusalem.

BOY THIEF WALKS INTO TRAP AT Y. M. C. A.
The thefts of money from the clothes of persons who have been using the swimming pool at the Y. M. C. A. have stopped. A trap was set for the culprit by members of the association and he walked into it. The thief proved to be a 16-year-old boy. He was watched and when searched he marked money which had been left for him was found in a small inside pocket of his trousers. He was taken before the juvenile court but his reformatory sentence was suspended pending his good behavior while on parole.

HAVE TOO MUCH GRAIN.

So North Dakota Fathers and Sons Are Arrested.

Mohall, N. D., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charged with stealing wheat, Chris Laskie and three of his sons have been arrested. George Grenes, a neighboring farmer, made the complaint after he had a detective from the Twin Cities here working on the case for some time. It is claimed the Laskies have marketed a great deal more grain at different elevators than they raised and many of the farmers have been missing grain this winter.

BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT

W. I. Prince Outlines His Stand on Questions
Before Public.

Says Stand on Municipal Ownership Has Been
Misrepresented.

W. I. Prince, candidate for mayor, gave his conception of the kind of men needed for the city government, in his talk at the Armory Saturday night. Mr. Prince went over his platform and declared that if he goes into office, it will be without alliances to hamper him in working out his plans for good government.

He said: "Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen: I want to express my warm acknowledgment to Dr. Day for his kindness in giving me this opportunity to say a few words to you regarding my candidacy for mayor.

"Our city can be made into a large business corporation. The voters are the stockholders. Next Tuesday they will choose the officers, whose duty it will be to manage the affairs of the city. Those officials are known as commissioners and a mayor. If it were a private corporation, they would be known as the directors and president or chairman.

When the people of Duluth adopted the commission form of government, they were actuated chiefly by a desire to do away with petty politics, to hinder an economical and efficient management of the affairs of the city. They wanted to have the affairs of the city administered on a business basis. Every year the city of Duluth spends a vast sum of money—approximately $2,250,000. If this great business concern is to run along sound business lines, it is not necessary that you select as your mayor and commissioners men who have had real business experience. It makes but little difference how brilliant a man may be as an orator or politician, unless he has had large experience in actual business he cannot be expected to give this city the kind of an administration of its affairs for which you have so vigorously declared.

"A public officer is a public servant. He is not the master, he is not the dictator. It is his duty merely to carry out the public demands and administer the affairs in an up-to-date business manner. It is sheer nonsense to talk about any honorable anything. The citizens have made a clear demand. Our new charter gives the right of initiative and referendum which they are enabled to originate legislation; the referendum—under which they have the right to pass acts of their servants; and the recall—under which they may remove any officer any servant who is not carrying out their wishes.

"Our new charter so fixes responsibility that a public official has all the powers necessary to run the affairs of his office, and if he fails in his duty the public cannot be deceived as to who is to blame. Any good public servant welcomes this responsibility and no effort would be made to evade it.

"The voters should not forget that the mayor is merely one of the commissioners, who is designated as mayor for no other purpose than to committee a chairman. A mayor has no power of veto and appoints only the officials of the department offices, to preside. The city attorney, the city assessor, the city clerk are all appointed by the commission as a whole. The mayor has no more power in selecting these officials than any one else has.

"I have mailed to every voter in the city a copy of my platform. I have tried to make my stand upon all important municipal affairs as clear as possible. English language can make them stand for obedience to law along all lines. Among others, dealers in intoxicating liquors must conform strictly to the law. They should not ask anything more. All, however, must be treated alike and no favoritism shown. The patrol limits should not be extended.

"Responsibility on the Men. The hands of the commissioners and officials laws would be useless as cannon on a beach. Good government means more upon men behind the law than on the law itself. No public official has the legal or moral right to violate the oath that he takes to enforce the laws simply because there may be some people in the community who do not want the laws enforced.

"The social evil, of which we have heard so much during this campaign, must be dealt with in a determined and vigorous manner and as far as possible suppressed. There must be no segregation. Commercialized vice, which the world over has demonstrated that segregation does not solve, simplifies the problem for the police. Besides it cannot be defended on the ground of good morals. But he who thinks that the commissioners will satisfactorily solve the social evil problem will be disappointed, for as is said in the Chicago vice commission's report: 'Until the hearts of men are changed, we cannot hope for any ultimate annihilation of the social evil.'"

"The public service corporations must be active in giving better service and in extending their lines of operation wherever such extension becomes reasonably necessary for the greatest upbuilding of our city.

"Public improvements must be made wherever reasonably necessary, but greater care should be exercised in distributing the burden of taxation so that it will fall, as far as possible, upon those most able to bear it.

"The eight-hour day for city employees must be preserved. I am in favor of municipal ownership of the electric light system and of every other utility for the public ownership of which the people may declare.

"The will of the people as to the electric lighting system has already been expressed at the polls and I will, if elected, carry out their mandates. I will not make any compromise. A great effort has been made to misrepresent my stand upon this question. I hope that what I have just said and what I said over my own signature in a letter sent to every voter in the city will clear up any honest doubt as to where I stand upon this or any other proposition.

Contract With the People. "My platform is my contract with the people of Duluth. I promise faithfully, in co-operation with my fellow commissioners, to carry out the policies therein outlined. Excepting what I say in my platform, I have no promise, express or implied, to any person, organization or corporation regarding what I shall do as mayor if elected. I shall enter the office absolutely free from any compromise of the social evil judgment and conscience. If I thought that my election to the office of mayor would be a detriment to the city, I would not have been elected. For the only kind of an office I aspire to is one in which I can bring it my best efforts and act in a free and upright manner with only the good citizenship of Duluth to account to. I feel that much can be done for Duluth by the continuous and constant study of its needs, and I pledge myself if elected to devote my every energy to the upbuilding of our city.

"If you believe in the principles for which I stand and if I am qualified by experience, ability and character to be your mayor, I ask you not only for your vote but for your active support in my campaign."

EYES OF STATE WILL BE ON DULUTH DURING THE CITY ELECTION TUESDAY

tended by cloudiness. Although every effort has been made to instruct the voters in the preferential system of voting, the fact that the system is unfamiliar to this city or this state, has created confusion. The second choice feature is entirely new. It is feared that many ballots will be spoiled tomorrow, though every precaution has been taken.

Result In Doubt. No man may accurately forecast the result. The oldest students of politics in the city are at sea. Some candidates are favorites, but those backing them as favorites are a little fearful of misplaced judgment. The extent to which the added columns of the ballot will be used is a matter of wide speculation. The voters will take it into consideration and the weight given varies. Anything may happen in the common contest. It sizes up the situation accurately. The registration on the 10th of March provided for that purpose totals 10,113. The charter provides that any voter who has not registered may vote on the day of the election, but he must be an affidavit of residence, supported by the sworn testimony of two freeholders of the election district in which he lives. Many affidavits have been filed in advance and many will be filed out tomorrow, the acknowledged judges. There is usually a falling off of about 10 per cent in the vote, from the registration figures, but the vote tomorrow is expected to exceed the registration, the voting the ordinary loss from registration.

Fair Weather Promised. The weather forecast promises fair, mild weather for the remainder of the week. The polls will open at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning and remain open until 9 o'clock in the afternoon. The results of the election will not be known at least until Wednesday noon, and probably not until later. The election system requires that the second and third choice votes be counted, unless some man gains a majority before the third choice votes are added. The change from the old system to the new one is a great one. The candidates for commissioners are grouped in the date will gain a majority, but that the third choice votes will be counted and added before the results are determined.

city council was called for this afternoon. On Saturday the council discussed a request from the relief committee for more money to meet the sinking fund of the city to the relief fund. Councilman Harry Klein and Gus Haggerty, who are in charge, made numerous remarks derogatory to the relief committee and its motives, accusing the committee of being a sink fund for the city. The council, however, did not take any action on the matter.

In the bread line today was Eugene J. Kearney, a multi-millionaire, who gifts to charity have been very large and recently included $25,000 to the Y. M. C. A. of the city. He obtained three loaves of bread and a small sack of potatoes.

Shilling Adventurers. With the rapid subsiding of the flood waters and dissipating of panic among refugees here, shilling adventures are being continued. Among the most interesting of these was the case of Charles M. Adams in Riverdale. When the flood first rushed through that section of the city, Mr. Adams, his wife and 10-month-old twin girls into the water. The woman was laid over a friend in Warder street. An hour later it was again necessary to move.

FACTS AND FICTION

Experiences of Duluth Citizens Are Easily Proven to Be Facts.

The most superficial investigation will prove that the following statement from a resident of Duluth is true. Read it and compare evidence from Duluth people with testimony of strangers living so far away you can not investigate the facts of the case. Many more citizens of Duluth endorse Doan's Kidney Pills.

J. H. Tomlin, prop. grocery, 112 W. Palmerton St., Duluth, Minn., says: "I have had no need of a kidney medicine in several years for Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and you may continue publishing my endorsement. For two years I suffered severely from kidney complaint. I finally got so bad that I had to lay off from work for days. My back was very painful and I was nervous and restless. In the morning I felt all tired out and I had trouble from the kidney secretions. I got little relief from medicines until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. A great many people have asked me about my cure, and every time I have been pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I always keep a supply on hand."

and the family was taken by rescuers out of a second-story window. The came in which they were being transported was dashed against a telephone pole by the terrific current and crashed. Adams swam bravely in the icy water for a few minutes when he was picked up by a man in a dory boat. Just before he was rescued he saw his wife sink for the third time. The baby girlswere floating down the street. Then he collapsed.

Three hours later he regained consciousness to find himself in an attic and beside him on the floor lay his wife, whom he believed to have been drowned. A few minutes later a man crawled into the attic window from the floating roof of a barn, bringing with him the twins. They had caught in the branches of a tree and were picked off unhurt by the man who was riding down the street by a high school boy, on a hastily improvised raft. The lad was a member of the Riverdale troop of the Boy Scouts and had been trained how to administer first aid to the drowning.

Old-Fashioned Housecleaning Is Unnecessary

Housecleaning should not mean an ineffectual removal, once or twice a year, of accumulated dust and dirt. No longer is it necessary to tear up floor coverings and move heavy furniture from room to room.

A Vacuum Cleaner will clean house for you daily. Sweeping with a broom merely shifts the dirt and leaves the air full of dangerous germs. A Vacuum Cleaner removes the dirt entirely and does it quickly, silently and easily.

The Perfect Cleaner

The powerful, steady suction of a Vacuum Cleaner takes every bit of dirt from rugs, floors and draperies, it removes every particle of dust from mattresses, pillows, upholstery, etc., and leaves them sweet and clean as new.

LEAVES FROM A REPORTER'S NOTE BOOK BY X

Owen Kirwen maybe prefers beginning to working for a living, but he hasn't reached the stage where he likes to be arrested.

When he was gathered in about 10:30 last Saturday night by Patrolman Nels Perry on a charge of soliciting alms from pedestrians he made a desperate effort to make his escape. He resorted to trickery as well as flight.

On the street he submitted to arrest very quietly. He walked along as peacefully as the spring lamb in a companying March out of the present calendar. He didn't seem to have a good jump in him.

Just before they reached the patrol box at the corner of Third avenue west and Michigan street Kerwin came to life. The officer had his hand on his collar. Without warning he let himself drop like a chunk of lead.

He slid from the bluecoat's grasp and the next second was in full flight down the black depths of the wholesale district. The policeman didn't stop to gasp or wonder what had happened. He gave chase instantly and was close to Kerwin's heels.

About half a block down the fugitive thought that he would try an old dodge on the cop.

He threw himself on all fours directly in the cop's path. He hoped that the bluecoat would trip over him and go sprawling in four directions at once, giving himself a chance to hide or duck down the side street.

But the bluecoat was watching him. He was too close to stop before he reached Kerwin, but he averted to one side. As he did so he reached down a big paw and grabbed Kerwin by the seat of his trousers. When he came to a standstill he had Kerwin hanging between his hip and the sidewalk.

When the Black Maria arrived Kerwin was bundled inside and was taken to headquarters without further mishap. In police court this morning he pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for this afternoon.

A squad of officers from headquarters called a gambler's room which was running full tilt in the rooms over a candy store at West Superior street late Saturday night. Sam McKechnin was arrested on a charge of keeping gambling devices and sixteen players gathered about the tables were booked for gambling.

Up $100 bail and appeared in police court this morning, pleading not guilty. He was to be tried Thursday afternoon.

Each of the others forfeited $15 bail. They gave their names as Patrick Long, Jack Knab, John Anderson, Charles Redman, John Anderson, William Jordan, Bud Murphy, Sam Johnson, Jen Wick, Peter J. Smith, Albert Forsman, John Sullivan, Sam Herman, Ecklund and Joe Morris.

The police had no difficulty in gaining an entry. The door was promptly opened and several plain clothes men stood about watching the game before the players realized what had happened.

Finally one of them changed to look up and recognized a detective. He knew what was doing, having had previous experience and threw the others into confusion by announcing that the place had been pinched.

Ed Clark, who caused a commotion at headquarters Friday night by putting his head against the wall of his cell and otherwise attempting to injure himself, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in police court on a charge of having been drunk. His trial was set for this afternoon.

The police believe that Joe Morley, a pretended deaf-mute who has been a nuisance to the police for months past has been raising his voice in the residence section. He was arrested at 1 o'clock yesterday morning with a big chunk of roast beef under his arm.

When asked where he got it, he denied that he had helped himself to the piece of resistance of somebody's Sunday dinner, but granted that he had picked it up in an alley. The police are trying to discover the owner of the roast.

Thomas Sullivan, another of the Bowery wallflowers which decorate the police court, granted that he had filled up on booze of doubtful quality. He walked into a downtown drug store and started to put one arm about the waist of a woman who was inside.

GUNBOAT WENT MAD.

Spaniards Were Avenged on Moros Who Slew Soldiers.

San Francisco Chronicle: Capt. John E. Morris, who spent a long, long time in the Philippines chasing the Moros, tells a story about a Spanish military governor in Jolo who, in the peace of fancied security, allowed a whole flock of his soldiers to go swimming one day.

Now, the Moros has a habit of going jumatado when the camp meeting variety of religion hits him. When a Moro goes jumatado he takes the most disagreeable weapon he can find and carves up the first Christian he meets.

When the Moros saw the soldiers in the water several of them thought it was the very best time to go jumatado. With the result that these soldiers never went swimming any more.

The sultan, who had charge of that particular bunch of Moros, promptly was sent for. The Spaniard wanted to know why his men were slaughtered in such manner.

"How could I help it?" the sultan asked. "They went jumatado."

Nobody wants to interfere with anybody's religion, of course, but there was a Spanish gunboat laying around loose in that immediate vicinity. The governor sent for the commander of that gunboat.

"You haven't had much target practice lately," he remarked to the naval officer, "and you might try a little. Now, a few Moros make fair targets. When I want target practice to stop I'll run up a flag. But until the flag is run up a flag, they are fair targets."

It was one glorious bombardment. A lot of Moros accidentally got hit. And somehow the poor flag was mislaid, so it couldn't be hoisted.

It was a most excited sultan who showed up before the Spanish governor. If that gunboat didn't stop its nonsense he wouldn't be a sultan any longer because he wouldn't have any subjects to sultan over. And he told the governor so.

How can I help it? demanded the governor, with some heat. "The fool boat has gone jumatado and I can't interfere with the religion of the blame navy."

Girls Are Needed.

The local state free employment bureau is having a hard time getting women to fill positions that are offered. This is thought to be due in part to the fact that at this season of the year it is customary for young people to make arrangements for a vacation in the woods. Girls are not prone to apply for positions under those circumstances. The bureau has a number of vacancies in hotels, where girls may earn $16 to $30 a month, with room and board, in private families, where the terms are almost as liberal. There are also unfiled positions for stenographers at good salaries.
